HITLER MOVING 1,500,000 MEN TO RUSSIA FOR CRIMEAN SMASH

Georgia Woman Indicted As Love Poison Slayer

Habersham Triangle Ends in Two Deaths

By LAMAR Q. BALL
Constitution Staff Writer.

CLARKESVILLE, Ga., March 31.—Eight hours of investigation by a Habersham county grand jury ended tonight with the indictment of 51-year-old Mrs. Flossie Thomas on a charge of murder—the law's reaction to a weird story of the love of two women for a quiet, soft-spoken farmer and the revelation of a poison plot that was hatched, officials say, in the frantic mind of the loser in the unequal triangle.

The grand jury's single indictment was the result of a sifting of a great mass of evidence in a fantastic crime—the death by poisoning of two innocent bystanders in the love affair.

Mrs. Thomas, the wife who resented the loss of her husband, and the "other woman" are pitted against each other today in irreconcilable hatred, each accusing the other of the poison deaths as the grand jury met, each having filed formal charges of murder against the other.

Trial Set for Second Monday in June

The "other woman," Mrs. Australia Baker, was absolved by the grand jury of the charge of murder against her, but Captain S. W. Roper, chief of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation, announced last night Mrs. Baker would be placed under bond as a material witness. The trial will be held the second Monday in June.

The widespread interest in the love and poison murders up in the hills of Habersham today assured packed courtrooms when the trial is started. Revelations of the poison murders had stunned the community and the unfolding of the whole story will be welcomed by a community awed by sudden and plotted death in the foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains.

Farmer and Negro Woman Victims

The dead are:

1. William Baker, 42, a tubercular, wasted wisp of a man, a former tenant farmer, whose buxom wife is accused of having lured and won the affections of Mrs. Thomas' husband, on whose property Baker toiled.
2. Bessie Tate Winters, a 59-year-old Negro woman, who is suspected of having been aware of the manner in which the innocent Baker came to his death. She was killed, officials say, because she "knew too much."

Baker, according to expert testimony of Dr. Herman D.

Holdup Suspect, British Units 'Jekyll - Hyde' In Burma Fight Burglar Held To Escape Trap

NEW DELHI, India, March 31.—(AP)—Lacking routing planes and fighting in country teeming with hidden enemies, the British armies guarding the direct route to the central Burma oil fields were counterattacking tonight in a desperate effort to smash Japanese road blockades which have isolated British mobile units in the Irrawaddy valley.

The position of the British in the Promé sector became rapidly more ominous even as the Chinese at Toungoo, on the left wing of the Allied line, joined with reinforcements coming from north and east and re-established their positions after a week of the most bitter combat.

(Up to Sunday, a Chinese communiqué said, the bodies of 5,000 dead Japanese were counted on the battlefield around Toungoo. Hard fighting continues, despite the Chinese successes.)

General H. R. L. G. Alexander's communiqué acknowledged frankly that the British positions in the Promé area, some 140 miles south

This suspect was listed as John Kugler, 28, of Route 3, Atlanta. He was booked on a charge of suspicion of robbery.

The alleged "Jekyll-Hyde," according to the detectives, was listed as R. L. Sisson, 41, of a First Street address. Detectives said he confessed to a series of recent burglaries, including breaking into the Red Cross headquarters at 850 Peachtree street.

Sisson, the detectives said, told them he worked every day on a construction job at the Crawford W. Long Memorial hospital, where a maternity wing is being built, and at night allegedly pursued his crime career.

Arrested with Sisson was a man listed as W. L. Turnipseed, 29, of Hapeville. Both were charged with suspicion of robbery and allegedly confessed to a series of crimes which the detectives said last night were "so numerous as not to be immediately tabulated."

The detectives added several hundred dollars' worth of merchandise, including cartons of cigars and cases of chewing gum, were recovered.

Sisson, the detectives, also confessed to breaking into a Peachtree street chain grocery store one Sunday afternoon, knocking out a piece of glass on the front door in broad daylight.

In the Red Cross headquarters, police reports disclosed, an attempt had been made to rifle the soft drink vending machine, but it was empty of coins at the time.

Other Victims. Among other victims of Sisson and Turnipseed, according to the detectives, was offices of Briarcliff, Inc., on Peachtree street, where a number of expensive desks had been damaged in attempts to get at contents.

In the arrest of Kugler, detectives said the tear-gas cartridge contained enough gas to fill the of Yenang-Yaung, heart of the oil fields, were "considerably hindered by lack of air reconnaissance and by the fact that the local population as a whole appears actively in support of the enemy."

The present situation, as related officially, was this: While British reconnaissance units in the Paungde area, some 30 miles southeast of Promé were heavily engaged in difficult country and, while another small British mobile force was moving south to clear out an enemy knot of resistance, the enemy in a flanking movement crossed the Irrawaddy southwest of Promé and attacked Shwedaung, only 10 miles below Promé on the east bank.

There the Japanese collided with an Indian frontier force battalion which advanced to clear Shwedaung and, in heavy fighting, the Japanese lost 300 dead and wounded and the Indians took 70 prisoners—all of whom turned out to be Burmese.

Despite these casualties to their mixed force, the Japanese maintained their position.

Members of Armed Forces Now May Send Mail Free

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP)—The Postoffice Department announced tonight an order would be sent tomorrow to all postmasters directing them to accept, without postage, letters and postcards written by members of the armed forces.

The order, effective on receipt, does not apply to air mail service or to packages and parcels.

Letters should bear the word "free" in the upper right-hand corner of the envelope, the department said, and the name of the sender, together with his rank and the branch of the service to which he belongs, should be written in the upper left corner.

The letters will be accepted free any place where the United States mail service is in operation and may be deposited in any mailbox in the United States.

Springboard Sought By Germans for Push Into Rich Oil Lands

By ROBERT BUNNELLE.

LONDON, March 31.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler is moving 100 fresh divisions into Russia for a big push to blast the Soviet forces out of the Crimea on his flank and acquire a springboard for the jump toward the oil of the Caucasus, qualified informants said tonight.

A responsible foreign source said his advisers from a number of listening posts "seem to make it clear that the Nazis are preparing to mount a series of spearhead offensives hinging somewhere around Orel and extending south to Sevastopol to clear the railroads and bases they need if they are ever to shake hands with the Japanese in Persia of the Indian ocean."

It is apparent, this informant added, that the Germans "are going to exploit fully if they can the bastions of the winter front like Orel, Kursk, Kharkov and Taganrog—to mention only those in the south, where it seems the Nazi attacks are to develop first since they have been moving fresh troops to the Crimea lately."

Huge Armies. It was estimated that the Germans have about 180 divisions (2,700,000 men) on the Russian front apart from the 100 divisions (1,500,000 men) now being moved into position.

The best information, this foreign source said, was that the Germans eventually would be able to put nearly 4,500,000 men into the 1942 Russian campaign against an estimated 7,000,000 Russians.

The report of this mounting German onslaught coincided with a Moscow radio announcement tonight that the Russians had secured an important strategic point in the Leningrad area and were holding the initiative in the Smolensk, Vyazma and Kalinin sectors.

London quarters intimated that the recaptured point in the Leningrad region might be Schlussemburg, just east of Leningrad on Lake Ladoga—an important rail connection.

Reds Open Offensive. In the south, a Vichy report based on Bucharest information said, the Russians launched an offensive today in the Kharkov region from the north, south and east. The attack was preceded by artillery preparation lasting until last midnight.

Five Nazi planes were destroyed during the day near Moscow, it said and listed 25 downed yesterday against six Soviet craft lost.

As for the land front, the official announcement said that again during the day there were "no essential changes" in positions.

Meanwhile, the British and Russian navies, fighting together for the first time, have beaten off Germany's initial naval assault on

Must Have Old Tube To Buy Tooth Paste

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP)—Use a long list of scarce metals, plastics and colors, and to stop making any electric trains, metal toys or model airplanes that fly. The order takes effect July 1.

Use of iron, steel and zinc was banned at the same time for a long list of household articles ranging from fly swatters and cursors to dining rods and coat hangers. Pots, pans and kitchenware were curtailed in various degrees.

Restricted Materials. Vacuum cleaner production must halt entirely after April 30 under another order.

Critical materials—iron, steel, zinc and rayon—are restricted to 7 per cent by weight of each playing. Other scarce materials are forbidden entirely, effective at once, except for manufacturers' stocks already partly fabricated.

Adults' recreational material also is affected for the order covers dice, poker chips and games. Sporting goods and athletic equipment are not affected but playground equipment, except that used by clubs, schools and institutions, falls under the ban.

Under the terms of the trade-in provision, a WPB spokesman declared, retailers are liable to penalties prescribed under the second war powers act—a maximum of $10,000 fine and a year's imprisonment—if sales of tube toothpaste or shaving cream are made in violation of the order.

Purchasers will not be required to exchange a used tube of the same type as the tube being purchased.

It was understood that the used tubes eventually would be reprocessed and allocated back to the tube manufacturers—possibly representing the entire supply of tin they can expect for the duration of the war.

In orders earlier in the day, the government pared a long new list of non-essentials from the nation's economy to save metal for guns and convert machines to war production.

Toymakers were ordered not to

America Bars Any War Aid To Argentina

Must Pull Her Share of Western Hemisphere Defense Load.

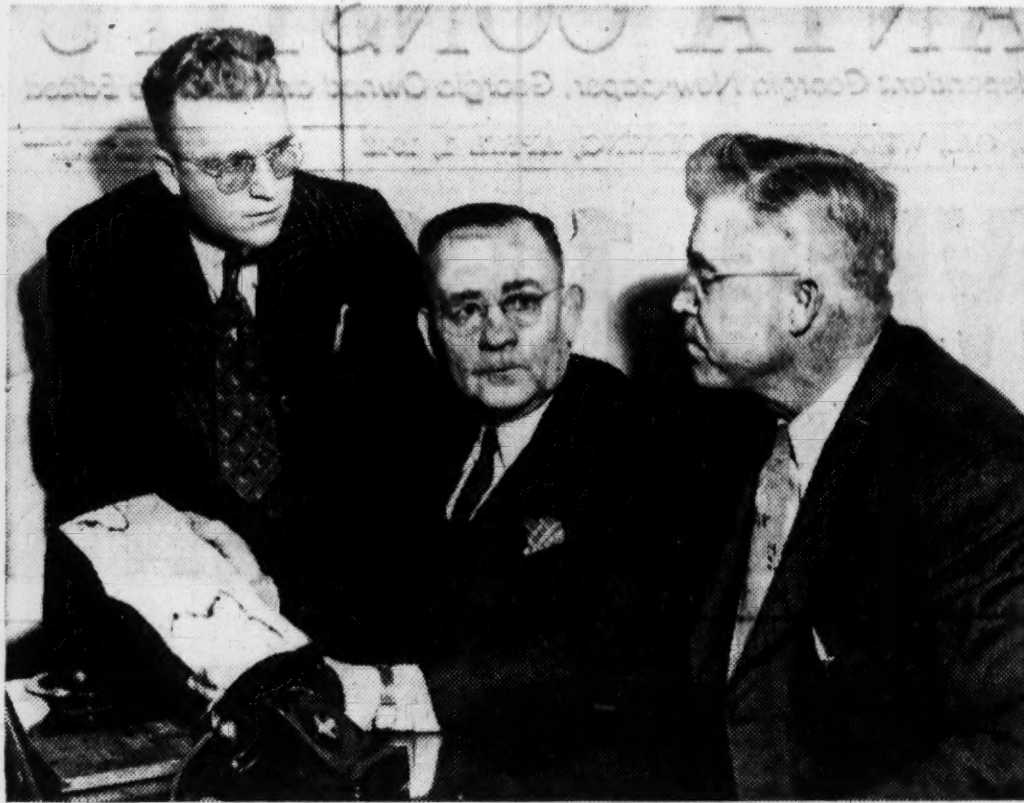

By JACK BEARDWOOD.
WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP) Until Argentina pulls her share of the hemispheric defense load, the United States must of necessity give preferential treatment to those Latin American nations that have either declared war against or broken relations with the Axis, a high official declared today in delineating this government's hemispheric policy.

This, the informant said, is a matter of logic and is designed to assure the safety of the nine Caribbean and Central American nations that have declared war and of the nine other countries that have severed all connections with Germany, Japan and Italy. Even Argentina herself, the source declared, must recognize that defense supplies must go first to those nations that, through their declarations, have exposed themselves to Axis attacks.

Curtail Assistance.
This policy, he explained, is in no sense a reprisal against Argentina. He declared Argentina had every right to determine for herself what her foreign policy should be.

At present, the informant declared, Argentina is not contributing anything effective to the defense or security of the Western Hemisphere, and until that republic pulls her share of the hemispheric load it will be impossible for the United States to provide her with the same kind of practical assistance that this country is providing for the other American republics.

The situation in relation to Chile, the only other Latin American nation that has not broken

HABERSHAM HOME—Nestled in the hills of Habersham county in the sleepy little hamlet of Harvest, near Clarksville, is the home of F. Dennis Thomas and his family. with the Axis, is modified because of that country's greater vulnerability to attack, the official said.

Legitimate Policy.

The policy the United States is following in regard to supplying naval and military material to Argentina must also be applied to economic and commercial matters, he added. However, the United States will make every effort to provide those goods necessary for the internal stability of the country, the official explained.

The delineation of the United States' new policy toward Argentina was made in view of certain reports indicating that a growing difference was arising between the two countries.

Georgia Jurors Indict Woman In Love Killing

Jones, toxicologist, of Oglethorpe University, actually died of arsenic poisoning.

Bessie Winters, according to Dr. Jones, was killed with strychnine poisoning.

The body of Baker had lain in the grave for three months before suspicious officials dug up the casket, tested the anatomy and discovered that arsenic poison, rather than tuberculosis, had caused his death.

The body of the Negro woman had been in its grave a month when bewildered agents of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation and Sheriff Pope Hill, of Habersham county, struggling with the revelations of tempestuous love and violent death, reopened the grave and found strychnine in large quantities in the woman's system.

The story related to the Habersham county grand jury yesterday by Captain S. W. Roper, chief of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation; GBI Investigator Lewis Clyburn, Sheriff Pope Hill, Solicitor General G. Fred Kelley and a score of witnesses, was the story of a turbulent love scandal that has gripped for some time the imagination of all the residents of this farm area.

In the early spring of 1941, William Baker, born and raised in Habersham county near the small post office station at Harvest, Ga., moved with his family to a tenant house on the property of F. Dennis Thomas.

Families' Backgrounds.
Harvest is merely a mail address for residents of the farm community, about six miles west by northwest out of Clarksville.

In the Baker family were the father, ravaged by tuberculosis; his wife, Australia Lovell Baker, and three children: Grace, 16; another girl, 14, and Eugene Talmadge Baker, 9.

Thomas, 42, operated a small sawmill and owned a large plot of land in that section. In his family were his wife, Flossie Thomas, 31, and three sons: F. Dennis Thomas Jr., 16, and two others 10 and 12 years old.

Before her marriage, Mrs. Flossie Thomas had been Flossie Palmer. A native of Habersham county she had an elementary school education and for several years prior to her marriage, had taught very young or backward children in the school system of the county.

Thomas, although classed by GBI agents as illiterate, had worked and won the school teacher. Shortly before the marriage, however, he suddenly left the family acres around Harvest and moved to Detroit, where he lived for five months on West Port street. Just as suddenly he returned to Harvest and married his fiancée.

The Thomas marriage proceeded amicably, it is said, until spring of last year.

Then into the small tenant house on the Thomas property moved the Bakers, the tubercular father, the healthy wife and the children.

Took Family Car.
Baker, because of his physical condition, was not an ideal tenant worker, according to GBI records. He did manage, however, the investigators say, to produce a crop with the aid of his entire family.

"Last fall," said GBI Investigator Clyburn, "Thomas grew restless. He seemed dissatisfied with his home life. He stayed away from home on some occasions and, sometimes, was away from home for days at a time. It was generally noted a friendship existed between him and Australia Baker."

"Then in September, according to a story that has been told us by Mrs. Thomas, the husband suddenly drew a log across the road one day and stopped the family car that was being driven by the eldest son, Junior."

"Mrs. Thomas has told us," said Clyburn, "that her husband, with the point of a gun aimed at his son, forced the boy to alight and surrender the car."

"Thomas disappeared from Harvest then and our records show that, at the same time, the entire Baker family disappeared."

Mrs. Thomas consulted Sheriff Hill and Solicitor Kelly, a road sought to obtain warrants charging abandonment, assault with intent to kill and larceny of an automobile. The only warrant granted at that time was the abandonment warrant.

"Shortly after that," said Clyburn, "it was discovered that the Baker family and Thomas were living in Chandler, Ariz., a small town 26 miles from Phoenix. Thomas was engaged in irrigation work."

Another month elapsed.

One day, William Baker suddenly returned to his old home in the tenant house on the Thomas farm, where Mrs. Thomas was conducting the affairs of the farm. The thin wrath of a man was alone.

Died November 12.
Twenty-three days after Baker returned, he died and everyone accepted the cause of his death as the tuberculosis he had been known to have for years. He was buried November 12.

Early in January, Mrs. Thomas enlisted the aid of Pink Hill, 54-year-old neighbor, in an effort to move a stove from the deserted house of the Baker family into her own house.

Mrs. Thomas helped Hill with the job and, in cleaning the stove and the quarters, she cleaned out some papers inside—many of them charred, others unburned.

Out of the insides of the stove fell a letter and Hill picked it off the top of the pile of charred trash.

He read it.

Mrs. Thomas, according to Investigator Clyburn, became curious.

"What is that?" she demanded. Hill, it is said, held the letter in his hand.

"You don't want to read this, Mrs. Thomas."

The woman insisted and Hill reluctantly turned the half-burned paper over to her, he told investigators.

Copy of Letter.
The letter, presented to the grand jury yesterday, read:

"6382 West Fort Street, Detroit, Mich.
May, 1941.

"Mrs. Australia Lovell Baker, Harvest, Ga.
Dear Madam:

"Your continued orders for our drugs is appreciated, which is being mailed in plain package. Follow direction and your TB patient will pass out so gradual that his friends will think it is the disease that is taking him away."

"The other person mentioned may try to resist and seem indifferent at first, but follow direction closely. Contact him at least once a month at one directed, get it to him food and drink, keep him away from his family as much as possible, no matter how devoted he is to his family, he will soon be obeying your orders. Be sure to get control of all insurance and remember we get our per cent of all collected according to agreement. All correspondence must be in plain envelopes, no return."

"Wishing you success,
Very truly,
"ARMSTRONG UNION."

This mysterious note about poisons and a TB patient and the other person who not turned over to the authorities by Mrs. Thomas, according to Investigator Clyburn.

Sent Note to FBI.
Instead, it is said, she sent the note to FBI agents in Atlanta, who advised her to take the matter up with local authorities.

Then, it is said, she sent the letter to her brother, who lives in Atlanta.

The brother telephoned the Georgia Bureau of Investigation and contacted Investigator Clyburn.

"The brother told me," said Clyburn, "that I was to make photostatic copies of this letter and return the original to him—for his files." This Clyburn did.

For two weeks, GBI investigators, Captain Roper, Sheriff Hill and Solicitor Kelly questioned Mrs. Thomas about the letter.

Captain Roper had this to say of the letter today:

"Imagine a firm in the business of selling poison for quiet murders, putting itself on record in a letter like that."

"Imagine the writer warning the woman not to use a return address and then putting his own return address at the top of the letter."

"It is strange that West Fort street—on the letter—is the street on which Thomas had lived in Detroit."

"The whole thing is crazy and preposterous."

Mrs. Thomas insisted to the investigators that the letter was authentic, Roper said.

"She constantly reminded us that the innocent Mr. Hill had discovered the letter," said the GBI chief.

Suspected Mrs. Baker.
Mrs. Thomas told us that she had suspected Mrs. Baker of killing her husband, although she could not explain the 23-day lapse between Baker's return from Arizona and his death. Mrs. Thomas told us that Mrs. Baker wanted to go to her husband out of the way so she could be free to live with Mr. Thomas.

Mrs. Thomas told us that she felt that Mrs. Baker had given her husband arsenic in her dachshund powder.

"Checks of the statement that Mrs. Thomas had made some copies of the mysterious letter and mailed them to relatives," said Investigator Clyburn, "revealed that this supposed original copy she gave us was really a copy of a hand-written letter. Mrs. Thomas had gone to Clarksville, we found, and had a public stenographer make her a copy and a carbon. The stenographer identified the copies she had made. We haven't been able to find the original. In fact, we have proved that this letter found by Pink Hill in the stove was actually one of the copies Mrs. Thomas had made. That made us suspicious."

The exhumation of Baker's body followed and Dr. Jones found Baker's body charged with arsenic, to a degree that arsenic was in his fingernails and in his hair.

February 17, three days after GBI investigators accused Mrs. Thomas of writing the letter, the Negro woman died. Bessie had lived in a shack by herself and no importance was attached to her death at the time.

Mrs. Thomas Jailed.
Then came the arrest of Mrs. Thomas on a charge of suspicion in the death of Baker. She was put in jail and further investigation revealed the "poison" letter had in some way got into the hands of Bessie. The Negro woman's body was disinterred and Dr. Jones found she had died of strychnine poisoning. In a trunk in the Thomas home, a quantity of strychnine was discovered by police.

From her jail cell, Mrs. Thomas swore out a warrant charging her husband with abandonment and

There are citizens up "nawth" who can't understand the southerner's taste for turnip greens anyhow—and if they could have seen those the pure food and drug inspectors confiscated yesterday their bewilderment would have been boundless.

They were full of cockleburrs. In a libel filed in federal court yesterday the United States attorney charged 32 cases of canned turnip greens shipped into Atlanta were adulterated with "cockleburrs added." The libel asked condemnation and seizure of the scratchy vegetables.

MOULTRIE, Ga., March 31.—Purebred bulls and calves are taking first place among prized possessions of livestock men.

W. E. Aycock, manager of a purebred cattle sale, disclosed that after the polled Hereford sales here, a bull calf was transported in a taxicab from Moultrie to Thomson, a distance of approximately 250 miles.

P. S. Knox sent a truck for the Hereford he had purchased here. There was room for all except the young bull. So the rear seat of a taxi was removed and the calf rode to Thomson in style.

Senate Blocks Move To Place Wartime Curbs on Labor

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP)—The senate brushed aside today an effort to attach wartime labor regulations to pending small business legislation, but leaders were reported reliably to be considering a program that would provide early debate on the subject.

Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas, announced that as soon as the small business bill is out of the way, he will move for consideration of his proposal to empower the government to take over war production plants and freeze labor relationships when such action is necessary to prevent or end strikes.

Senators anxious to join the house in taking an Easter recess were understood to be negotiating for an agreement by which Connally's bill could be made the unfinished business of the chamber and taken up after the vacation.

Majority leader Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, told reporters he would not agree to taking up the Connally bill, but a brief recess might be worked out during which a motion to consider the measure could be the pending business. Debate on such a motion might well cover the whole field of labor legislation, even though no bill was actually before the chamber.

The effort to write labor legislation into the small business bill was made by Senator O'Daniel, Democrat, Texas. He offered amendments to suspend the 40-hour week, abolish overtime pay, outlaw closed shop agreements and make it unlawful to use threats or violence to keep workers from their jobs.

These proposals, incorporated in two amendments, were shouted down on voice votes after an unsuccessful appeal by Senator Murray, Democrat, Montana, to O'Daniel to withdraw them.

The senate bickered for nearly six hours over the $100,000,000 wartime small business bill and then decided to delay action until differences over the loan provisions could be settled.

Murray, chairman of the special committee on small business, said passage of the measure was assured tomorrow as soon as an understanding was reached upon respective amendments proposed by Senator Bailey, Democrat, North Carolina.

Saying there were no defense strikes at the present time, Murray contended such amendments as O'Daniel offered would emasculate the bill, adding that an "effort to slap labor in the face at this time is a crime."

first floor of the bank with fumes. The capture took place a little after 1 o'clock in the afternoon during the peak of the rush-hour period. Detectives said the suspect also had several pistols in his possession.

Detectives Nahlik and Coppenberger said they received information Kugler would be at the bank early in the afternoon to transact insurance business in connection with a recent accident involving his car.

Weapon Falls. Scores of customers were at tellers' windows when Kugler entered. The detectives moved to arrest him. As they advanced, they said, Kugler reached for a shoulder holster inside his coat and drew the tear gas gun. He fired, but the weapon failed to discharge its contents. The detectives then closed in and unarmed the man.

A man listed as James Ginn, of Route 3, Jonesboro, was taken into custody by the detectives in a downtown insurance office about an hour after the capture of Kugler. He also was charged with suspicion of robbery in connection with the dairy and the liquor store holdups.

Detectives said both men had been identified by victims as being involved in the dairy holdup, in which $500 cash was taken from a woman cashier, and the liquor store job in which $105 was taken.

Pullman Service To Be Restored

The Southern Railway Company announced yesterday it would restore overnight Pullman service on a trial basis between Atlanta and Brunswick beginning today.

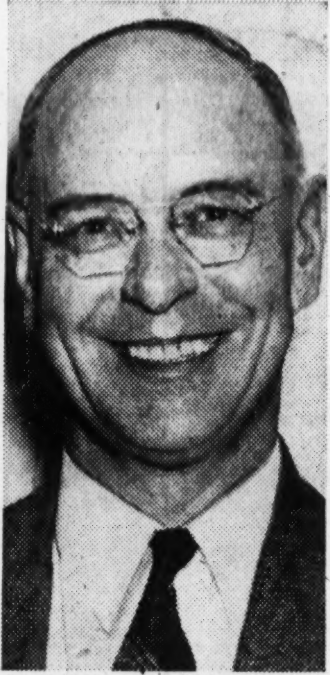

Walter McDonald, chairman of the state Public Service Commission, said the restoration plan had not yet been approved by the commission, but that this action was not necessary in advance since a former service was being resumed.

John H. Woods Is Elected Head Of Optimists

Charles W. Shaw Chosen Treasurer at Club's Meeting.

John H. Woods, of Donaldson-Woods Company, printers, yesterday was elected president of the Optimist Club of Atlanta, succeeding Sid Reams.

Charles W. Shaw was elected treasurer. Four vice presidents chosen for the ensuing year were: Beaumont Davison, Steve Outlaw, Travis Johnson and T. M. McClellan.

Mrs. Paul Donehue, who succeeded her deceased husband as corner of Fulton county, was the principal speaker.

Plans were discussed for presenting the club's annual show for charity. This year it will be "Desert Song," to be given early in May, with Helen Poss, of Athens, as leading lady.

After all, why should women have a priority on dressing-up at Easter? A man likes a little attention, too . . . and he gets it (without the aid of a funny-looking hat) when he sports a Worsted-Tex suit and all the 'trimmings' from Davison's Men's Shops. His wife regains that certain gleam in her eye, to say nothing of the other femmes, which means that all good-looking men aren't in the movies. What's more, he gets that feeling of being better dressed, better looking and more confident than ever when he selects from such a complete assortment of new Spring styles, colors and patterns, and when he knows that Davison's quality costs no more.

Allies Hammer Jap Guinea Bases, Streamline Army

MELBOURNE, March 31.—(AP)—New destructive bombings of Japanese bases on New Guinea and Timor were announced today as Australia streamlined her army command and American-Australian fighting men sped to battle stations throughout this threatened continent.

Jap and U. S. Planes Clash Over Darwin

Dogfight Follows Raid by Seven Twin-Engine Bombers.

DARWIN, Australia, March 31.—(AP)—Their wings flashing like mirrors in the bright sunlight, United States and Australian planes fought with Japanese zero fighters 12,000 to 15,000 feet over Darwin this afternoon.

The dogfight followed another abortive raid by seven twin-engine Mitsubishi bombers much like that of yesterday, when seven bombers dropped 30 bombs.

Today the Japanese bombers made a single run over their target and dropped 20 bombs, most of which landed harmlessly in the bush. There were no casualties.

Meanwhile Allied defenders and the Japanese fighter escort mixed it in full view of watchers in Darwin. One of the Japanese craft slipped suddenly into a long, screaming dive, but pulled out near the ground and streaked off of sight toward the west.

Later the pilot of an Allied fighter took to his parachute and apparently landed near the harbor, where boats and a land party set out to search for him.

One Allied plane was lost in yesterday's fight.

Daladier Hurls Angry Warning

RIOM, Unoccupied France, March 31.—(AP)—Former Premier Edouard Daladier, one of five leaders of the defeated French republic on trial for responsibility for France's defeat, shouted an angry warning today that although France bowed to Germany in this war "it will not always be the same ones who got licked."

Daladier's sensational statement came at the conclusion of testimony by General Joseph Keller, who had said France's tank force was outnumbered by Germany's by two to one.

"Never mind who got licked," Daladier said, addressing himself to General Keller, who commanded all tank units attached to infantry. "It will not always be the same ones who got licked."

The former premier cited General Charles de Gaulle, now leader of Free French forces, among others as having developed the modern conception of tank strategy which was ignored by the Germans but adopted by French Army chieftains.

Farish Defends Cartel's Value To U. S. in War

Standard Oil President Says Synthetic Rubber Industry Aided.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP)—The president of the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) asserted today his company's agreements with I. G. Farbenindustrie, the German dye trust, prior to United States' entry into the war, greatly aided development of synthetic rubber in the United States rather than hindered it as contended by the Department of Justice.

The company's contention was submitted to the Senate Defense Investigating Committee by W. S. Farish in reply to testimony by Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold, head of the antitrust division.

"I wish to assert with conviction," Farish told the committee, "that whether the several contracts made with the I. G. did or did not fall within the borders set by the patent statutes or the Sherman act, they did inure greatly to the advance of American industry and more than any other one thing have made possible our present war activities in aviation gasoline, nitro and explosives and in synthetic rubber itself."

Farish declared there was "not a shadow of foundation" for saying Standard had delayed or stifled the development of synthetic rubber in this country.

On the contrary, he pictured the company as being a leader in attempting to develop synthetic rubber in the United States and as having pressed repeatedly for government support which it was unable to obtain on any large scale until after Pearl Harbor.

"Any charges that the Standard Oil Company or any of its officers has been in the slightest respect disloyal to the United States is unwarranted and untrue," the company's president declared.

Adjusted Relations.
Farish conceded that DAPG, a German subsidiary of Standard, planned in 1938 or 1939 to erect at Hamburg a plant for producing aviation gasoline.

"As a German corporation, operating in Germany (with which country we were not then at war)," he said, "it could not have done otherwise."

The witness acknowledged that in 1939 Standard entered into a new agreement with I. G. Farben adjusting their relations because of the war in Europe, but said this was "both reasonable and expedient, and in the interests of the United States."

Newhall Appointed Rubber Co-ordinator
WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP)—Arthur B. Newhall, dollar-a-year man and former vice president of B. F. Goodrich Company, today was appointed co-ordinator for rubber, with broad power to direct the "use, control or production of natural and synthetic rubber."

The appointment was made by War Production Director Nelson.

The new rubber chief thus comes responsible for the 400,000 tons-a-year synthetic rubber program. He is specifically empowered to represent Nelson in dealings with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and its subsidiaries, the leading agencies for financing synthetic rubber plant expansions.

Newhall will conduct negotiations with RFC and with the petroleum co-ordinator's office, not only on the synthetic program, but also upon such problems as the stockpiling of rubber for military use, the purchase and sale of rubber and rubber products, and the financing of new production facilities.

In addition he holds general supervisory power over WPB's rubber units and rubber salvage operations; will make decisions on the allocation of rubber as between military and civilian requirements; set policies for priorities; and co-ordinate the rationing of rubber tires and tubes by the Office of Price Administration with WPB's rubber activities.

Hitler Moving 100 Divisions Against Reds

The Allied Arctic supply line to Russia, sunk one German destroyer, damaged another and wrecked three Nazi U-boats, the admiralty announced.

The Moscow communique tonight added another Nazi submarine and a transport to the enemy craft destroyed in far northern waters. The scene of the blows was the Barents sea and might well have been delivered by part of the Soviet naval force taking part with the British in the combined attack.

The sleek new 8,000-ton British cruiser Trinidad fired and then destroyed the one German warship with her six-inch guns. The Trinidad was in turn damaged along with the destroyer Eclipse, but both the British warships reached the shelter of a Russian harbor under their own power and their casualties were declared to be few.

The Russian ships participating in the attack were the destroyer Zerkow and the transport ship Zerkow.

BATTLE SCENE—The captain's headgear is in reverse and he has cotton in his ears for protection during the heavy fighting, but the American warship came out of the bombing engagement holding an enviable score—16 Jap planes destroyed. A task force engaged the Nipponese fliers February 20. This photo was shot during battle.

in the action were believed to be destroyers of the 1,800-ton Streltzi class, especially built for service in northern waters.

This battle was believed to be only the forerunner of an intense and lengthy naval campaign for the right-of-way around North Cape, and it was considered only a matter of time before Germany sends battleships against the supply line.

In the face of German claims that three transports were sunk and five other merchant ships damaged in the United States-British convoy, which was the target of three days of Nazi attack, the British admiralty communique said unequivocally that all the assaults on the convoy "were beaten off by Russian and British forces."

This indicated that although Allied ships may have been damaged, none was lost. The Germans had claimed specifically the destruction of a 10,000-ton transport from New York, laden with tanks and ammunition for the Russians.

Viewed in connection with last week's feat by a light British squadron in holding off attacks on a convoy by an Italian battleship and cruisers near Malta, the Arctic success was considered here to be proof that the Allies have sufficient forces on hand to keep both Mediterranean and Russian fronts supplied against the present weight of Axis attack.

The Arctic action was fought, apparently, all the way between Norway's North Cape and the Murmansk coast, which is daily assuming increasing importance as a supply lane to the Red armies. The Russians themselves have landed seaborne forces behind the German lines in the Murmansk sector to complete clearing the port area of danger from a German-Finnish siege.

Light enemy forces first were sighted on Sunday morning, while the convoy was traveling through frequent snowstorms, the admiralty said.

Destroyer Set Afire.
Despite bad visibility, the Trinidad engaged a large German destroyer, crippling her and setting her afire. The Trinidad then gave chase to two other destroyers and the crippled Nazi sank, according to enemy accounts.

A few hours later a second attack developed. One German destroyer was hit and stopped by the Eclipse, but the Germans brought up two more destroyers and the Eclipse broke off the engagement. The admiralty continued, German U-boats were discovered "and successful attacks by the Allied forces resulted in three U-boats being severely damaged if not sunk."

Today's German communique claimed that "two heavily-laden transports totaling 11,000 tons" were sunk by U-boats as they lay off the entrance to Kola bay, near Murmansk. The Germans said a third transport was torpedoed and probably sunk and a medium-sized merchantman damaged from the air.

Earlier, the Germans announced they had damaged a destroyer and four merchant ships in the convoy off North Cape, then, during a battle with the British and Russian warships, had torpedoed the British cruiser and sunk the 10,000-ton ship from New York.

India Feared About to Spurn British Offer

England Holds Defense Power Must Remain in Her Hands.

NEW DELHI, India, March 31.—(AP)—Strong inferential evidence arose today that Britain's final offer of full dominion status to India after the war was about to be rejected because of the unwillingness of the more important Indian political leaders to accept the condition that India's defense must meantime remain in British hands.

This was suggested by these facts: 1. The working committee of the dominant Indian group, the all-India congress, had reached the stage of drafting its conclusions—a draft which it was felt would hardly be required unless those conclusions were unfavorable—and was said to be of single mind.

2. Devadas Gandhi, son of the Indian leader Mohandas Gandhi, declared in the Hindustan Times that the congress was "bewildered" that one so sensible, so honest and so broad-minded as Sir Stafford Cripps should have lured himself into the false belief that a scheme based on complete control of India's defense by the British government would prove acceptable to Indian opinion.

3. Sir Stafford himself, the British emissary who is undertaking one of the most complex and difficult missions of all history, appeared to have been affected by the atmosphere of depression that was growing here.

City Directory Out, 235,440 Names Listed

A. E. Aaron Is First and David Zylberberg Last; Quizzes in It, Too.

The new city directory, complete with almost everything you can think of and many things you can't, was issued yesterday.

The big exception in the span of knowledge is the lack of nicknames. Bob Jones and Bitsy Grant are mentioned in the pages at the front of the book, which is about four inches thick.

But when you hunt 'em down inside, you'll find Robert T. Jones Jr. and Bryan M. Grant Jr.

"Gone With the Wind" and its author, Margaret Mitchell, also are featured in data on Atlanta, but you won't find Margaret Mitchell listed solo under the M's. You'll find her in parenthesis after the name of her husband, John R. Marsh.

Then there's a fellow named Quetz, the Yum Yum Sandwich Shop and other so-called oddities. "LECO"—it's written just that way—is an abbreviation for the Levee Brasserie Company, if you didn't happen to know.

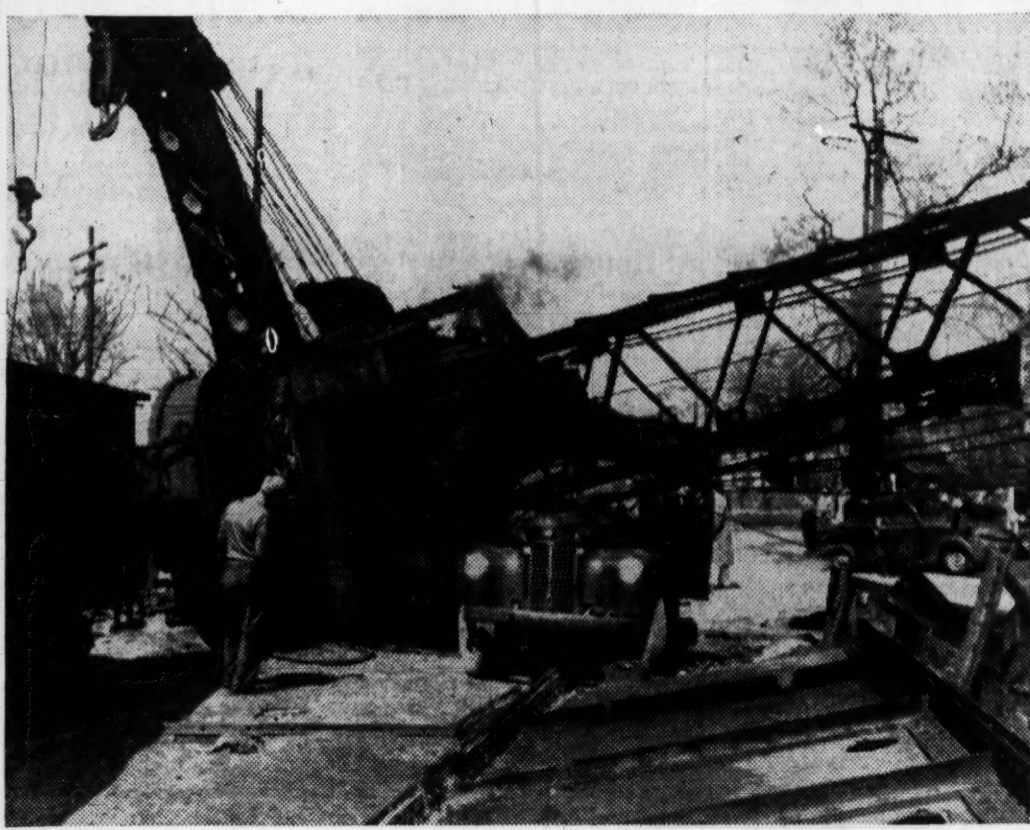

A. E. Aaron, restaurant proprietor, and David Zylberberg, clerk, are first and last on the new roster of 235,440 names. The telltale letters "USA" and "USN" appear after the names of hundreds of young men. Even some of the family names seem attuned to the military note of the day. These include Bond, Stamp, Blood, Sweat, Cannon, Bombard, Battle, Fife, Drum, Sword, Camp, Major, Gunner, Bombardier, Commander and Ensign.

The directory says Atlanta has only two fingers and one toe. There are two Winds in the city of "Gone With the Wind." Oddities among the family names include Sunshine and Raindrop, Office and Storage, Character and Outlaw. Striking names on a check, hotel register or questionnaire would include Denver Juniper, Harry Horsy, Jasper Sojourner, King Warrior, John Chick, May Peach, Lula Boy.

Lew Ayres Explains Position

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 31. (AP)—It was "profound thinking" which led Lew Ayres into a camp for conscientious objectors, the Hollywood movie actor said today as he broke camp on his train en route to a labor camp near Wyeth, Oregon.

The star in "All Quiet on the Western Front" Ayres said he had offered to do noncombatant service in the Army but had insurmountable scruples against joining any fighting branch.

"I was willing and wanted to go in the Medical Corps," he said. "I told the draft board that and I said it several times and in the many papers which I filled out."

"My training in first aid qualified me for the medical service. At least I could have been of some useful assistance."

"However, they wouldn't take me, so I applied for admission to the conscientious objectors' camp and they granted my request. I am happy about it."

Ayres, clad in white pajamas,

Ayres Must Pay U.S. $35 Monthly for His Keep

PORTLAND, Ore., March 31. (AP)—As a member of the conscientious objectors' camp at Wyeth, 40 miles east of here, Firm Ayres will have to pay the government $35 monthly for his keep, get up at 6 a. m. daily and swing an ax 40 hours a week.

He will have only a short recreational period in the evening, and like the approximate 100 other camp members will be on call for fire-fighting duty in the forests this summer.

was indignant when asked if a statement released at Los Angeles had been prepared for him by his studio.

"I wrote it myself," he said. "You can use it under my byline if you want to. I'm not ashamed of the position I have taken."

It began: "It was in early childhood that I was first introduced to the Christian creed of non-resistance to evil. It is a vague and nebulous doctrine to the United States and it has taken years of gradual realization and patience for me to understand the full significance of its world-healing possibilities. Today, I stand convinced that as like attracts like, hate generates hate, murder incites revenge, so charity and forgiveness reflect their kind, and the world's brotherhood will be made manifest not through economic expediences, but through man's awakening to the irresistible power of love."

Influenced by Film.

Asked if his role in "All Quiet on the Western Front" influenced him toward his anti-war philosophy, he said:

"Yes, I guess it did. I'm quite sure it did."

"What year was that picture released?"

"I don't remember."

Author Erich Maria Remarque, who wrote "All Quiet" said today in an interview at Beverly Hills:

"I am very sorry. I didn't expect it to have an effect like this. I think we all should fight against Hitlerism."

Ayres declined to "interpret" paragraphs in his formal statement. To do so, he said, would "only be a momentary consideration of a profound subject."

Paragraphs included:

Theological Studies.

"If I have learned one thing from my philosophical and theological studies, one issue upon which nearly all the most venerable of our teachers and sages have agreed, it is that man's troubles are the result of—himself. That is, the selfish emotions and passions within himself. And any emancipation from these conditions must be accomplished for himself—by himself. Individually and alone."

Maybe collectively later, but first as man and then mankind. Surely it is only childish dreaming that makes us hope we can come to live in Utopia without first becoming inward Utopians.

"Now let us consider war. Is it not strange that no one really wants war, yet few think life can be successfully or, at least respectfully, lived without it? We all shake our heads sadly over our predicament, and then wait for the other fellow to stop first."

So in my opinion, we never will stop wars until we individually cease fighting them, and that's what I propose to do. And I propose to proclaim a moratorium on all presumed debts of evil done us, to start afresh by wiping the slate clean, and continuing to wipe it clean. To hold no malice and so seek no revenge. To set our hearts in the right direction—and have confidence in God's beneficent wisdom to help us work out details."

Unbelievable Event--But True! Red Hymn in Constitution Hall

WASHINGTON, March 31. (AP)—A strange, almost unbelievable event, a bit hard on ghosts, took place tonight on the banks of the Potomac.

The Internationale, the Soviet national anthem, was played in Constitution hall, which is owned by the Daughters of the American Revolution who many times have denounced the Communist philosophy the rallying song commemorates.

The occasion was the Boston symphony concert for the benefit of the Russian war relief. The event was not sponsored by the D. A. R., which merely made its hall available. The list of patrons was headed by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, the vice president and Mrs. Wallace.

There were important names and important wealth in the sell-out audience that came to hear

Serge Koussevitzky conduct the 115-piece orchestra in a program all-Russian with but one exception—The Star Spangled Banner.

The American national anthem opened the concert, and standing to hear were Mrs. Roosevelt and a party from the White House in Box 13, which is considered by some historians to be Uncle Sam's lucky number because there were 13 original colonies.

Directly across the house was the box reserved for the Russian ambassador, Maxim Litvinoff, and Madame Litvinoff. Their national anthem was played after that of the United States.

The diplomatic colony turned out. There was a box reserved by the British ambassador, Lord Halifax, and Lady Halifax. In the audience—the hall seats 3,844—were names not-often in society and in politics.

Farmers Urged To Join Food Drive

Dr. M. D. Collins, state school superintendent, yesterday called on every farmer and farm family in Georgia to enlist in the "Food for Freedom Campaign" by signing pledge cards which will be distributed by teachers in the state school system.

Batches of enlistment cards were mailed to the schools along with a letter to each county school superintendent instructing him to see that the teachers co-operate in registering the farmers for one of the most vital jobs in the war program—the production of food.

The program is sponsored by the Georgia State Agricultural Council which has branch organizations in every county.

British Revenue Passes 8 Billion

LONDON, March 31. (AP)—Britain's revenue for the financial year which ends today passed 2,000,000,000 pounds ($8,000,000,000) for the first time in history.

The total was 2,074,057,310 pounds ($8,296,229,240) which easily beat the estimated revenue of 1,786,360,000 pounds ($7,145,440,000) and exceeded 1941's totals by 665,190,213 pounds ($2,660,760,852).

Expenditures were 4,775,694,355 pounds ($19,102,777,420) against a 1941 total of 3,867,245,670 pounds ($15,468,982,680).

NOW SHE SHOPS "CASH AND CARRY"

Without Painful Backache Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When clearance of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or painful passages with smarting and burning soon show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 12 million of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Lucky Break April 19 to 25 Started Career Is Proclaimed For Thompson Cleanup Week

Columnist Just Happened To Be in Right Spots.

How did Dorothy Thompson get her start? She didn't just happen to become a columnist for The Constitution and hundreds of other newspapers with an estimated 8,000,000 readers.

Yet there was a break—a lucky one—involving in her career, rather her start. It came after her graduation from Syracuse University into social service work.

She went to Europe and was in Ireland when things began to happen. That launched her career. Courage and initiative sent her to the top.

As correspondent for New York papers in Vienna and Berlin, Miss Thompson revealed an uncanny ability for turning up in the right places at the right moment.

She landed a world-wide "scoop" when Emperor Karl made his second attempt to regain the Hapsburg throne in 1923. She reported revolts in Hungary, the Bavarian and Viennese revolutions and the Pilsudski coup in Poland.

Miss Thompson will speak at the municipal auditorium Monday on "Our World Today" under auspices of the Aidmore Elks Home for Crippled Children.

Tickets are on sale at Cable Piano Company and Rich's.

All Atlanta Urged To Join in Drive To Cut Fire Losses.

The week of April 19-25 has been proclaimed "Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Plant-Up and Fire Prevention Week" by the Governor and Mayor Lyle, and all Atlanta is asked to join the campaign to cut fire losses.

In issuing his proclamation the Governor pointed out that "more than 10,000 persons have lost their lives during the last five years in the United States and more than $250,000,000 in property is destroyed annually."

Fire Chief C. C. Styron and Fire Marshal M. H. Carter will direct a score of firemen who will inspect residences and businesses. The spring campaign is sponsored by the Women's Chamber of Commerce, of which Mrs. Carolyn Seivers is chairman.

Chief Styron said the program not only will help beautify the city but will safeguard health, stimulate civic pride and develop community co-operation.

ATLANTA, GA., APRIL 1, 1942.

The Cost of Carelessness

Since America entered the war, explosions in munitions factories in this country have taken 137 lives, maimed scores of others and have caused millions of dollars in damage and loss.

At the same time, the munitions destroyed may have, negatively, caused defeat and loss of many lives in the American fighting services. For no man can tell what a difference in the war picture might have been made had those destroyed munitions, instead, been placed in the hands of our fighting forces.

A recent survey indicates that carelessness has been the chief factor in causing these blasts, which at latest computation numbered 17. A spark from a horse's shoe, the smoking of a forbidden cigaret, a carelessly driven nail in a box of cartridges, are among the assigned causes for the disasters.

All the carelessness of somebody. If someone had not been negligent, that horse would have been shod with rubber, from which no sparks can fly. That worker would never have found a chance to steal a forbidden smoke.

Carelessness is the greatest contributor to the annual roll of accident deaths in peacetime as well as in war. But the price we pay for such lack of simple safety precautions is far heavier in war time. For it is paid by the men on the battle lines and it is paid by all of us who suffer by every day of unnecessary prolongation of the conflict.

The 17 explosions already listed are too many, by far. In fact even one would be one too many. But if we accept those 17 as warnings, as examples, and avoid others from similar causes in the future, the 137 deaths will not have been entirely in vain.

Burmese Bandits

For generations the bandits of Burma have been infamous. It is said that, of all countries in the world, the ratio of criminals to population is greatest in Burma.

Murderers, highwaymen, professional thieves and their ilk constitute so large a part of the Burmese population they are recognized as a powerful and uncontrollable class.

Recently, in war reports from the Burma front, there have been various references to Burmese natives fighting with the Japanese. These are, according to observers, almost entirely the criminals. Seeing fine opportunity for loot, for murder and rapine in the wake of the Japanese forces, they are enjoying a harvest of crime greater, even, than they have known in the past.

War is the happy hunting ground of the criminal, when the fighting forces do not deal in summary fashion with him. The Japanese gladly welcome the aid of murderers and thugs, so long as the crimes are perpetrated against the unfortunate people of the invaded lands.

Available Metals

In normal times suggestion that gold and silver be used to replace the base metals would be financial heresy of the first order. Under the impact of war, the so-called base metals actually are often of more value than these precious metals for the uses of conflict.

So that we can approach with some equanimity a proposal in Washington that silver be released for various commercial uses and recaptured after the war for monetary purposes. It is suggested silver could be used to replace copper in various electrical appliances and as an alloy in the production of "tin" cans. It previously was said gold also could be used in can production. Vast amounts of both metals now lie comparatively useless in various Treasury storehouses.

Since we do not know, today, what economic bases of society will of necessity develop after the war, it seems absurd to hesitate now to put our wealth to use in the manner best serving the nation.

Voice of Discord

The latest Dies diatribe, undoubtedly designed to work up a basis for asking an appropriation, appears to be nothing more or less than a waste of public time and energy.

Even though a person may view a nudist as a crackpot, there is nothing in the book that says he must by that token be inefficient, subversive or immoral.

It so happens that the target of the Dies blast, Maurice Parmelee, is an economist of long experience with particular knowledge of economic warfare stemming from service on a similar board during the first World War. So that if his experience will slice one day (and with it the lives of hundreds of thousands of persons) from the war, whatever he may do in other times should not influence his employment one way or another.

Dies' latest climb into the public print follows the pattern of his earlier forays—public condemnation of sensational nature, trial without jury or defense, failure to consult other members of his committee and failure to observe even the common courtesies.

Yet at a time when the nation should be working toward a common goal, Dies is permitted to run his one-man circus willy-nilly to sow discord and suspicion toward a thousand troops to Axis propagandists—as any who hear the Axis broadcasts will attest.

The Dies committee has been given a new lease on life, but that lease on life is dependent upon an appropriation, yet unvoted, which could better be spent for bullets.

Sunday Recreation

Thousands of young cadets, learning to fly America's planes of war, hundreds of other young Army men attending radio school and other of the manifold centers for instruction in the arts of modern war, are to be quartered in Athens, Ga., shortly. The advance guard is already there.

Because these young Americans have only one day of the seven for amusement and leisure time recreation, Sunday, the women of Athens are asking the city authorities to lift the ban against operation of moving picture theaters in that city on Sundays.

The women do not ask for any theater operation which would interfere with the normal Sunday church hours. All they ask is that theaters be permitted to open between the hours of 2 and 5:30 p. m.

Some of the young soldiers are taken into Athens homes as Sunday guests. Most of them attend church services in the morning. But the hours of the Sunday afternoon, with no opportunity for normal, decent recreation, are apt to prove long and lonely hours unless some provision is made.

The request of the Athens women seems reasonable. These young men are learning how to fight in defense of our own country. They are learning, too, how to accept the risks of battle cheerfully and bravely, for our sakes. It seems a small thing to ask that, for less than four hours on Sunday afternoons, the only day of the week they are free from the strain of intensive war training, they be permitted to enjoy good movies in a comfortable theater.

Anent the Primary

It is still many months before the state primary. Nevertheless there are already some announced candidates in the field, to say nothing of rumors galore about other prospective seekers after office in Georgia.

On account of the unusual conditions of war, one of the most important branches of the state government is the Georgia Public Service Commission. The problems of wartime transportation and of wartime operation of public utilities generally place upon this commission an exceptionally vital responsibility.

The present commission has done excellent work and there is no reason to doubt it will continue this work if so permitted.

Two members of this board, Commissioners James A. Perry and Perry T. Knight will be candidates for re-election to their posts. They are both men of seasoned experience. In view of the wartime problems which will face the commission in mounting urgency as the war progresses it would seem the part of wisdom that these men be retained in their places. It would be to the benefit of Georgia in more ways than one if they could be re-elected without opposition.

THE FOURTH REGISTRATION

(From The Elberton Star.)

It is announced that at an early date the government will hold its fourth registration, when all men between the ages of 45 and 65 will be enrolled, and each one found physically fit will be assigned to work for which he is best fitted.

This call will catch the many hanging around towns, doing only odd jobs, and those in rural districts who are finding and trying to find ways to keep out of farm work. This class of people need an authority that is final to overcome their distaste for work. And the farm is calling loudly for this or any other help. There is enough idle labor throughout the country, over war age, to man every farm in the county, and this of all years there is need of every farm being made to reach maximum production.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

HOW DID THEY GET IT? WASHINGTON, March 31.—Recently there appeared in the German press stories of a derogatory nature on the resignation of a sizeable number of air raid wardens in Washington. They got fussed up because the OGD had failed to provide the necessary equipment and training facilities on time.

It wasn't much of a news story outside of Washington and failed to create much of a flurry even here. But the Germans found it useful for propaganda purposes, spread it in the Nazi press as evidence of the national confusion which they have been telling the people existed over here in our war effort.

The thing about the incident that interested Washington officials was not how it was distorted for propaganda purposes by the Germans, but how they got it at all. It dealt with a subject matter that is edited out of the foreign news dispatches by the Office of Censorship. We did not even allow the story to be sent to England, simply because of the undue importance it would have given to a minor unimportant incident. The censorship works that way in connection with all cable dispatches.

Yet the story showed up in the German press almost immediately after it was printed in the Washington papers. If small inconsequential things like that are getting back to the Germans, more important ones must be also. The question is how it is being done. Since the declarations of war there has been no direct intercourse between the belligerent nations. American consulates have been closed in the Axis countries, just as their diplomatic representatives here have been placed under governmental detention until they can be sent home.

Every government has its own intelligence service, of course, and through various ways we seek information about the other fellow's plans. It is a recognized part of the game of war. Each side has spies in the other's territory.

One of the most common sources of information about a belligerent country is a friendly embassy of a neutral power. Germany has such a source here in the Spanish embassy. Since the days of the Spanish civil war the Madrid government of General Franco has been completely under Axis domination. Our official sympathies in that war were against Franco and in favor of the old leftist democratic regime. We were against the dictators.

The Spanish ambassador in Washington, Senor Don Juan Francisco de Cardenas, while professing to be pro-American well enough, naturally owes his first allegiance to the Franco Hitler-loving government in Madrid. He is supposed to take orders or be subject to removal. What he sends back in diplomatic pouches or uncensored cable reports in code is only his business. He would not be a good diplomatic representative if he did not send back what his government ordered.

TRAVEL AS THEY PLEASE The same thing, of course, applies to the embassies of neutral countries—the few of them that are left. Each ambassador, minister and attaché has the free run of the country. They go about as they please, are immune to arrest, and have facilities for finding out many things.

Recently an attaché of the Spanish embassy took a long automobile trip that might better have been made by train. Perhaps he wanted to see something of the country—how our munitions business was coming along. There was nothing to prevent him going or making a secret report to his government later, on what he found.

It is inconceivable that Senor Cardenas does not file a confidential coded report on many things that are intended primarily for Hitler's ears. In view of the close working arrangement between Madrid and Berlin, if he didn't someone else would probably be sent here who would.

WE ARE TOO LAX All of which brings up for review the question of how we should deal with the embassies of neutral, outwardly friendly nations who are but the puppets of the Axis powers. Certainly we are too lax in our present methods. In a way, it amounts to about the same thing as allowing Germany to reopen its embassy here and continue to operate with diplomatic immunity. About the only delay in Hitler getting the information he wants is that involved in relaying messages from Madrid to Berlin.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Of Course They're Stronger.

There's some woman, in New York I think, recently made a speech in which she asserted that modern woman was a far better physical specimen than her predecessors. In a way, it amounts to about the same thing as saying that modern woman is a far better physical specimen than her predecessors. I think she used the adjective "tougher," though I would hesitate to do that because of the meaning which might be read into it. She meant, of course, of "tougher" fiber when it came to physical labor, and to the ability to stand up under discomfort and hard ways of life.

I don't think there can be any argument with the lady. In fact, her thesis is so self-evidently true that it seems to be rather a waste of time and words to go to the trouble of pointing it out. Certainly modern woman is a stronger and finer specimen of humanity than women of a few generations ago.

You can point, if you like, to the pioneer women, those who went with their menfolk across the raw prairies by covered wagon and those who toiled in the fields to carve homes out of the wilderness. Yes, they were fine.

But the authentic records you'll find a lot of them died far too soon, that the death rate among them was appalling. And you must realize, too, that these were the exceptional women of their times. They were no more representative of the average womanhood of that age than a professional lady wrestler represents the average of today.

Those Fainting Delicacies.

It is not many generations ago since the average woman fell in a more or less graceful "faint" when her emotions began to act up. That average woman was a too-tight-corseted, sickly, languorous softie who thought her most appealing role was that of a helpless weeping. They wore dresses that dragged along the ground—regimented of dirt and bacteria—and shoes that not only elevated their heels to ridiculous unhealthy height, but at the same time pinched their poor toes until their only possible gait was a mincing hobble. The Chinese girl babies with their bound feet had little the worse of some of the fashionable women of so-called civilization.

They wore so many clothes it was a constant paradox as to how a creature so weak, so prone to faint, could cart the weight of material around. Petticoats galore, heavy dresses, impossible shoes, and those instruments of ironclad torture, the old style corset.

Of course there were heroines. I'm not trying to detract from them. In fact, to survive under the style handicaps imposed upon them is almost sufficient proof that they all were heroines.

Many Children Died at Birth.

It is not surprising so many children died at birth, or before. The only surprise is that any survived, with the wasp-waisted ideal the corset makers constantly held before womanhood of those times.

Oh, there were exceptions, I know. There were a few sensible women who refused to torture themselves in the name of style. And there were the women of the rural districts, many of whom were as sturdy as any farm wife of today.

But I'm talking about the average. And the average woman of those days was a pretty pitiful, weak, distorted excuse for a woman.

Of Course They've Changed.

Of course they've changed for the better. So much so there can be no comparison.

The modern girl is taller, bigger and stronger. Statistics prove that.

The reasons? Saner clothing, which gives the body a chance to develop in the natural way. Active, outdoor lives. Participation in vigorous sports. Basketball, hunting and camping, ice sports in the north, swimming, running, gymnastics.

Greater freedom in thought and activity. Equality with the male half of the race. Greater independence. The right to be free of male dominance, to work and earn a living.

A fifty-fifty basis for marriage, marriage, partnership of equals in all things. Greater knowledge of hygiene and of baby care, giving the youngsters a far better start in life.

Of course the modern girl is better fitted for the tough tasks that come with war than were the girls of a few generations past. That is self-evident on all sides.

Heroes At Home

CATHEDRAL CITY, Cal., March 31.—Not all of our heroes are in uniform over Australia or on the flying fields of Britain. Some of them are sitting almost anonymously right here at home. Marshal Headle is one of them.

Headle is chief test pilot of the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, and one of the finest and most respected pilots in the aviation world. This column tells the strange story of what happened to him.

It all happened in less than 10 seconds. Headle wasn't even in a plane. The accident got brief notices in the Los Angeles newspapers, and then was forgotten. But it took out of the air one of America's most valuable fliers.

Marshal Headle is the quiet, human, serious type of airman who does his job with intense thoroughness. He has been with Lockheed for 13 years. He personally insisted on flying every new type of aircraft first, even though some of them are tough to handle, and even though Headle has capable younger pilots under him.

And he was always experimenting. This experiment that almost led to his death was brought about by the great heights at which planes are flying in this war.

We hear a lot about oxygen and so on, but the plain truth is that a pilot is no good, even with oxygen, when he gets above 35,000 feet. He just doesn't do things right, that's all.

Trying for Altitude

So Headle, for months, had been experimenting. They have a pressure chamber at the Lockheed factory, and Headle spent much time in there, using himself as a guinea pig.

It came to his near-deadly climax last June. Without being too technical, here is what finally happened, as nearly as I can reconstruct it.

Headle was in the chamber alone, while observers stood on the side watching through a thick glass window. The observers had duplicate controls, outside, on everything but the supply of oxygen. Headle controlled that himself, from the inside.

Well, they slowly worked the pressure down until they had Headle in the rarified atmosphere of 42,000 feet—eight miles above the earth. All the way "up," he now, he had given himself less oxygen than he really should have had, trying to make the experiment tougher.

At 42,000 feet he felt himself getting very weak and hazy. He was sitting on a stool. He remembered the controls about eight hours. Then he tried to turn the oxygen valve; he doesn't remember ever touching it.

Saw Him Fall

But those on the outside remember it well. For they saw him reach up, turn the valve the wrong way—shutting his oxygen completely off—and then saw him topple off the stool.

It is hard for a layman to realize the terrible consequences of that act. Nobody can live long without oxygen. But, you might ask, why didn't they open the door and drag him out?

They didn't, because that would have meant instant death. You see, his system had been gradually worked up to a thin pressure of 42,000 feet—it would have to be worked as gradually back down again, over a period of half an hour or more, not to affect him dangerously.

But he couldn't live that long without oxygen. Fast and desperate thinking was in order for those at the controls outside. They had to compromise on the time element and take a chance. They compromised on leaving him in there eight seconds.

They stood there, frantic with anxiety while the eight seconds ticked off like eight hours. Then they opened the door and carried Headle out—and to the hospital.

Headle had "fallen" the equivalent of eight miles in eight seconds—almost 3,000 miles an hour! No human ever before has gone through atmospheric changes that fast, that far. No human can live through such an experience.

And He Survived

But Headle did live through it. The accident happened nine months ago and he is still alive, although a semi-invalid. Eventually he will recover in an abbreviated way.

He probably can never fly again, even as a passenger; his heart will never stand much physical exertion; he never can take any "altitude"—he can't even cross to the east coast unless he goes by boat through Panama. He must always stay near sea level.

When the accident happened, it was written that Headle had the deadly "bends" that deep sea divers get from being brought up too fast. That wasn't true. What he got was exactly the opposite of bends. As far as he knows there's no name for it, for nobody ever "fell" that way before. The result is a dangerously delicate heart, and a shattered nervous system corresponding to World War "shell shock."

For two months the doctors didn't expect Headle to live, although he didn't know that's what they thought, and it never occurred to him that he wouldn't live. Then he began to get better, but his nerves were bad. Any loud noise would throw him into a panic. They moved him from the city to a hospital at Indio, out on the desert, seeking absolute quiet for him. But the passing trains drove him insane.

He started to go down again. By October he was in a bad relapse; in some ways worse than at first. He couldn't stand it there any longer.

So he rented a new California-type house on the edge of this tiny village of Cathedral City, some six miles east of Palm Springs. The quiet of the desert is over this place and sudden noises are rare. Headle has improved rapidly.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

PHANTOM SUBMARINE HUNT A gentleman on the morning bus to town yesterday reminded me of Mr. J. P. Miller, the able editor of the Savannah Morning News.

The gentleman asked me if I'd heard of the huge German submarine which had been captured and was tied up at the docks in Savannah. The capture, he said, took place some days ago.

This reminded me of Mr. Miller. On Sunday last some of us took an early plane to Savannah. We were going to fish until time for the baseball game in the afternoon. The wind was too high and it was too cold, and so we merely waited, driving out to Savannah Beach for a stop and a look at the beach.

There was a tanker anchored off shore. She had fires under her boilers, because smoke was coming from her stack. A small boat left her and went on up the river. That was all.

At the baseball game that afternoon I saw Mr. Miller sitting just back of the third-base line. After exchanging greetings and passing the time of day, I informed Mr. Miller I was doubly glad to see him because I wanted to ask about submarines.

"Submarines?" asked Mr. Miller, shying away a bit. "Yes," I said, "captured submarines. I have heard so many stories about captured submarines in Savannah that I expected to find the river full of them and the jails bursting with captives."

MR. MILLER SAYS "NO" Just then I began to worry about who rarely, if ever, becomes excited.

But now he seemed to be swelling up. I could see he was fighting for control. At last his distorted features grew calm. He sighed.

"Let me see, now," he said. "Have you heard about the submarine which was blown to the surface off Savannah beach and towed into the river and to the docks just after the City of Atlanta was sunk?"

"Yes," I said, "and how the people of Savannah were so angry the authorities feared a mob and towed the sub to Charleston. I have talked to people who saw it."

Mr. Miller seemed about to swell up again, but he grew calm. "Have you heard about the one which came up and was sighted by a shrimp boat, which ran in and got a destroyer and the destroyer went out and captured it?"

"That must be the one," I said, "that a Savannah man told Mr. Earl Mann, the president of the Crackers, was tied up here now," I said. "He told Mr. Mann it was a large one and that the crew was on her."

Mr. Miller gripped the arms of his seat until his knuckles were white. "There are many others which have been captured," I told him. "Vegetable boats have reported them. Shrimp boats have got them. Where are they?"

"Listen," said Mr. Miller, "listen carefully while an honest and a haggard man tells you the truth. There hasn't been a single submarine captured and brought into Savannah. Not one. As far as we know, there hasn't been one captured anywhere near Savannah. But we do know there hasn't been one brought into the river. There isn't one here now. There never has been an enemy sub here at any time."

"Not one, eh?"

"Not one," said Mr. Miller firmly. "Not one, despite the hundreds of stories you and I have heard."

THE MODERN FLYING DUTCHMAN The Savannah submarine story bids fair to become as famous as the Flying Dutchman.

Mr. Miller said that one day about 4,000 persons in Savannah went down and stood as close to the docks as they could get from about 4 o'clock in the afternoon until 9 o'clock that night. The story swept the city that a sub had been captured and was being brought in. It wasn't true.

The theory is that some person who doesn't know what a sub looks like, gets a glimpse of some war vessel in the mouth of the river. This might be a sub chaser or a destroyer. Seen from a distance they look quite small, as they are not very large close up. They have on their dark war paint and all names and insignias are removed. They do not look like our own vessels. An uninformed person seeing them at a distance decides they are a captured vessel, because they do look strange and unfamiliar.

That person swears he has seen a captured vessel. When, after a day or so, it puts out to sea, having refused, it becomes "a captured sub which has been towed to Charleston."

This may explain it. Yet, human nature being what it is, I suppose we must go on hearing about the numerous subs tied up at Savannah. We like to believe things we believe to be secret and available only to a selected few.

Even though there isn't a sub there, and hasn't been one, it makes a pleasant story.

You Can Get No Help in Time Of Trouble From People You Have Snubbed

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Japan's most effective weapon is the ancient saying, familiar in all parts of the world: "You think you are better than I am." When any man speaks those words, there is bitterness in

Dudley Glass

Friend of mine gave me a third of his seat on the trackless trolley the other morning—and a lecture. That slogan, "Your best friend isn't based on fact. He will, whether you like it or not. Friends are almost, if not quite, as bad as relatives. I have very few relatives. On second thought, maybe I have very few friends. But let's not go into that."

This well-intentioned trolley passenger offered a helping hand.

"Why don't you get into a broader field?" he inquired. "I'm tired of your dog and your back yard and the flowers that bloom in the spring, tra la, which have nothing to do with the case, if you know your Gilbert and Sullivan. Why don't you write about something that will interest everybody?"

After informing him that I knew my Gilbert and Sullivan before he was out of short pants, I asked him what he thought would interest everybody. And he held my breath while waiting for an answer, because that would be a formula close kin to the long-sought secret of the alchemists, to transmute base lead into pure gold.

"Well, now," he replied. "Baseball and football and maybe tennis."

I retorted that I possessed no knowledge of those games and besides the sports department handles them. He spoke of politics, and I explained that I had kept a fair degree of health by forgetting who was governor. He said the war was the prime subject of thought just now and why didn't I go into that. I apologized for laying off the war and letting Dorothy Thompson and General MacArthur try to muddle through without my advice.

"Just what do you think would interest everybody?" I asked. "I surely would like to know."

That had him stumped for a moment. But he was smitten by an inspiration.

Grand Idea

"The weather," he said, triumphantly. "Everybody complains about the weather."

"Don't ask me to print for the millionth time that old Mark Twain gag, 'but nobody ever does anything about it," I remonstrated. "I must draw the line somewhere. Secondly, the weather won't stay put. I write something about spring sunshine and before my stuff is in type we're having a blizzard."

April 1, a Hint, The Weather and State of Disgust

"Well," he insisted, "everybody is interested in the weather. You go to it."

So what?

The weather, it seems to me, has more than ordinary news value just now. It is as unpredictable as a woman or which way that car ahead is going to turn. It is uncertain, coy and will not please—when coal runs short it's bound to freeze.

If you are still listening breathlessly to my personal views on meteorology, I prefer warm, sunny spring days. Who wouldn't? But how many do I get? Few as feathers on a trained seal. No, sir! I get cold or I get rain, or maybe both.

I'm speaking in the first person singular because I don't care what kind of weather you get. It may snow in Barnesville and I won't complain. A rain may flood the sewers in your block and it will leave me unperturbed. I'm thinking about me. Aren't we all?

It was only a night or so ago that the house grew just a bit too chilly for genuine comfort, so I summoned forth all my pent-up energy and built a fire in the furnace. The mistress of the manor returned from the movies at 10:30 p. m. and declared that the house was 15 times hotter than the hinges of hell. (The thought was her's, but the language is my own.) So I went to bed without tossing on another shovel or so of fuel—and awoke next morning feeling my chin for icicles. I found none, but the longer fragments of my beard broke off at a touch.

This is April 1, when one can count only on the unexpected which is sure to happen. No, to be frank today is March 30, but you'll read it on April 1, if you've acquired the insidious habit. Take me, for instance. I've eagerly snatched the paper every morning for year after year to see what has happened to Little Orphan Annie overnight. Nothing ever has, but I feel relieved.

Would I Were There

I am reliably informed that the climate of southern California, which maintains headquarters at Los Angeles, is so uniformly bright and mild that permanent residents grow bored with it and would welcome a snowstorm or even a hurricane. Indeed, I have heard it said a hurricane would be appreciated, because that's the only thing Florida has had California lick on since the swallows first returned to Capistrano.

Personally, I decline to credit the story because the only time I ever was in Los Angeles a bunch of gladsome Shriners had established a ferry service between the Biltmore hotel and Pershing square, owing to an exceptionally heavy condensation of California fog which made a skiff more reliable than an automobile. But I think that, if I had the opportunity, I'd take about 10 years of sunshine—not too hot—and risk being bored.

The Atlanta Convention and Tourist Bureau, I think, without venturing severe criticism, has overlooked a bet in advertising Atlanta's climate.

Its officers forget that some like it hot, some like it cold. Why not quote the official records to prove that a three-day stop-over in our metropolis of the southeast will provide—if the law of averages is observed—more different types of weather than could be found between Alaska and the Panama Canal? And so much cheaper!

Despite the calendar, which says March 21 is the beginning of spring, most folk—especially of the fair sex—look upon Easter, which is this next coming Sunday, as the turning point. That is the day they expect to blossom forth in spring array.

Well, I try to be optimistic. But counting on Easter for sunshine and a warm glow is—like the case of the women who married three times—the triumph of hope over experience. As for me, I'm ordering another ton of coal and having my raincoat vulcanized.

Industrial Board Budget Is Pared

As state officials started to whittle expenditures because of reduced income, the Georgia Industrial Board's budget, first approved for the new quarter, was cut yesterday by 15 1-2 per cent compared with the previous quarter.

The savings effected in the budget will be achieved through a reduction in allowances for travel, communications and supplies.

Charles G. Bruce, director of the board, submitted to the governor a budget calling for expenditure of $25,724 compared to an outlay of $29,228 in the quarter ending yesterday. The governor pared this to 24,661 before approving it.

The board is supported by special assessments on insurance companies.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

"GET RELIGION."

Bishop Arthur J. Moore, in a truly great sermon last Sunday afternoon at our annual meeting for men at

Druid Hills, taking as his text, "What shall I do then with Jesus which is called Christ?" made this striking statement:

"The only way I know to get religion—the only way I know to become a Christian—is in an honest facing up to the question, 'What shall I do with Jesus?'" declared Dr. Moore, "and that calls for confession of sin, repentance toward God, and unquestioning and implicit trust in the Lord Jesus Christ."

And that, my friends, is sufficient answer to the oft-asked question, "Why do the people go in such great throngs to hear Bishop Moore?" He preaches the Gospel. He does not try to tone it down to tasteless doses. He forthrightly tells the truth of God's love for all men, and the kindred truth that all men stand in need of this saving love. He sees unbelieving men as dying men—dead in trespasses and sin, going farther and farther away from God. He seeks to win them to the Gospel call of forgiveness and healing and life everlasting. He calls that "getting religion."

"I was riding through south Georgia one day on a local train," said Bishop Moore, "and while the train was standing still in a little turpentine camp, I raised the window and called to an old Negro leaning against a tree and asked him if the people in that community were enjoying their religion. He answered, 'Yes, boss, them's whuts got 'em.' I know there is a very distinct sense in which religion has to get hold upon us, but I tell you there is also the other inevitable truth, as set forth in my text, that the sinner has to decide whether or not he will get religion."

"In the 15th chapter of Luke we read about three lost things—the lost coin, the lost sheep, and the lost boy. The woman went and found the coin and put it again in her purse; the shepherd went and found the sheep and brought it safely within the fold; but the father did not, would not, could not, go and bring the boy home. The boy had to decide for himself whether or not he wanted to be in the father's house. If that father had forced him to go home, he would have been just as much a prodigal in the father's house as he was in the hopen. It was only when he said, 'I will arise and go,' that he was fit to return to the father's house. And it is right there in the realm of the will that every sinner must give answer to the question of my text," said Bishop Moore. It was, indeed, great preaching. Fifty men lifted their hands, asking for prayer at the close of the sermon.

By the way, we have another great preacher at Druid Hills tonight, Dr. Roy Angell, pastor of Central Baptist church, Miami. He will preach on "Three Essentials for a Happy Life." Come and share with us in this hour of high privilege.

Kansas City Journal Suspends Publication

KANSAS CITY, March 31.—(AP) The Kansas City Journal, an afternoon daily with a newspaper ancestry dating back 88 years, announced suspension of publication today with its final edition.

Published by Harry Newman and associates since last October, the Journal was sold at auction March 23 to a group of bondholders.

It employed approximately 300 workers, including 50 on the editorial staff.

Suspension of the Journal left coverage of the Kansas City, Mo., field to the Kansas City Star, which publishes the Evening Star and Morning Times. The Kansas City Kansan operates an afternoon daily in Kansas City, Kas.

Sunday School Region Parley Set Next Month

Meetings Will Be Held in Tifton April 21 and 22.

Some of the outstanding speakers and Sunday school workers of the south will address four regional Sunday school conventions in Georgia next month.

Dr. T. W. Tippet, Sunday school secretary of the Georgia Baptist Convention, said the meetings would be held at the First Baptist church in Tifton, April 21-22; First Baptist church, Sandersville, April 23-24; First Baptist church, Commerce, April 27-28 and First Baptist church, Carrollton, April 29-30.

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, pastor of the Baptist Temple, Philadelphia, Pa., will address the Tifton and Sandersville conventions on the subject, "Problems of War and Peace."

Among other speakers at the conventions will be Dr. John L. Hill, book editor, Baptist Sunday School Board, Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. J. O. Williams, business manager of the board; Dr. W. F. Powell, pastor First Baptist church, Nashville; Dr. Harry Clark, professor, University of South Carolina, Columbia, S. C.; and Dr. Clifton J. Allen, of Nashville.

CHAPLAIN SPEAKS.

MACON, Ga., March 31.—"Courage, with wornout equipment, will not suffice in this war," Chaplain K. O. White, of Camp Wheeler's Seventh Battalion, told a chapel gathering at Mercer University yesterday. Emphasizing the need for co-operation on the home front, he said "victory and the lessons God intended, will come through sacrifice."

KEEP YOUR EYE

when you pick your new outfit

Let's call a spade a spade, what do you say? This is no time for fancy sugar-coated stuff. Before you plunk down your hard-earned dollars for this year's outfit, take a good look at its "family tree". Is the fabric a vigorous thoroughbred or a pale weakling? Will its tailoring stand the gaff or fold up like an accordion? Here are a few simple tips to help you get the right answers. For long wear, it's double woven gabardine—with shetland or tweed for sports. For stand-up tailoring, it's Rochester needlework—first, last, and always. For both—fine woolens plus Rochester quality—it's Bond's! Yes, every Bond suit in this group is Rochester tailored—something we believe no other clothier in town can say! And because this superb job is done in our own Rochester workrooms—with no wasteful, in-between costs to boost prices—naturally you pay less. Long wear for the future, with a modest price today—that's your pleasant outlook, at Bond's!

Nazi Radiocast Seeks To Sow Discord in U. S.

Short Wave Station Is Pointing Propaganda at 'Warmongers.'

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP) The Nazis have taken a lesson from the secret radio broadcasters who heckle them and have set up an "American Freedom" station.

Last week, for the first time over the short waves, Station DEBUNK was heard. It purported to be an underground American station waging a gallant struggle against the warmongers of Washington.

Its programs open with "The Star-Spangled Banner," sign off with "America," and denounce, in the folksy oratorical style of some American politicians, the "Jewish crowd running the show in Washington."

Unfortunately for deception purposes, the signals of DEBUNK were traced easily to Europe. Its slanting arguments started toward the rural districts, follow precisely the Berlin propaganda line. This was true to such a marked extent that listeners in this country believed Berlin was making no serious effort to conceal the fact the transmitter was operated in Germany.

Its arguments apparently are aimed at the middle west and are anti-British in appeal. Americans are told Yankee farm boys are being sent to their death for the "Red Coat snobs."

Chief speaker, "Joe Scanlon," who, noting that "elections are coming again and our people will have a last opportunity to reassert themselves," urges that American citizens organize "to fight the dictatorship being set up in Washington."

The Office of Facts and Figures reported tonight Tokyo has named a new shortwave broadcast, the "America First" program. The "Super-Patriot" from Tokyo proclaims: "The isolationists were right. Whatever their stand may be, they have the whole world standing behind them in full sympathy and admiration."

Another Japanese propagandist declared: "Practically all the leaders of various parties in the United States are strongly denouncing the Washington policy in connection with American strategy."

And from Tokyo, also, comes this assurance: "Japan would be a charming partner to any nation which would understand Japan's ideas correctly. Japan will share with the United States its newly captured rubber and tin if Americans will get rid of Roosevelt."

Civitan Members Hear Ben Fuchs

Ben B. Fuchs, an Atlanta who was in Honolulu when Pearl Harbor was attacked on December 7, told the Civitan Club yesterday at the Atlanta Athletic Club how he felt to be in a bombing raid.

Fuchs was visiting his daughter and her husband, who was stationed at Hickam field. Bombs fell everywhere, he said. One fell on the home of his son-in-law and daughter, destroying a bed which had been occupied a short time before by his little granddaughter. But the family suffered no casualties.

Three new members of Civitan were presented: Captain J. V. Babcock, stationed at Georgia Tech; Oneal Brown, attorney, and Christian Christensen, a textile executive.

Grand Jury Will Question Board Today

Welfare Unit Reiterates Request for More Funds.

Another request that the Fulton County Board of Commissioners appropriate $50,000 additional, or as much of it as possible, for aid to dependent children and old age pensions was made yesterday by the Department of Public Welfare as the board members prepared to appear before the grand jury at 11 o'clock this morning to answer questions regarding county finances.

The request was made in a motion made by Ivan Allen Sr., and seconded by W. O. Duval which read:

"We express appreciation to the county commissioners for their efforts to find funds necessary for the operation of this department and we again request that they appropriate $50,000, and that they make available $15,000 of such sum during the balance of the year for the certification of old-age assistance applicants now pending which in turn will bring into the county and to the recipients $480,000 annually and which will only necessitate annually thereafter the expenditure of $24,000; and that the remaining $35,000 be earmarked for the use of this department if and when there is an increase in the county's anticipated income."

Members of the welfare board discussed at length what would happen to its social security program if more funds were not forthcoming. J. J. Doran urged the board to take care of dependent children first and offered a motion, which passed, that the state be urged to reallocate funds withdrawn last year.

While the board was considering what it could do, a committee of the grand jury continued to investigate county affairs. The main body of the grand jury resumed hearing on the state affairs during the administration of Governor Rivers.

It was brought out Monday that the grand jury had made inquiry into the recent purchase of a new Cadillac automobile for a county official. Examination of the minutes of the board revealed that it authorized Dr. C. B. Adams, chairman of public works, to trade in an Oldsmobile automobile, which had run 30,000 miles for a new one, the car to be used by A. A. (Bub) Clarke, construction chief of public works.

According to the minutes, the board on March 14 authorized Adams to transfer the old Oldsmobile to Oscar Jones, another employee of his department, and to trade in another car for a new one.

No mention of what type of new car or what price was to be paid for it appears in the minutes. It developed yesterday that the new car was a Cadillac which cost $1,700.

It was pointed out that Clarke's work requires him to make frequent trips all over the county where public projects are under way. It was also said it was difficult to obtain new cars.

Besides Clarke and Jones, the only other county employee whom the county buys cars is the sheriff. The sheriff's car, it was said, is used to transport prisoners to the state prison.

It was understood that employment by the county of a nursery company at $500 per month for landscaping county parks had come in for criticism, but a check of county records indicated so far this year the board had approved only one payment of $500 for this purpose.

No Tax Appeal. The welfare board voted asking the grand jury a second time to increase tax millage rate for relief from 2½ to 2¾. The last grand jury failed to make this recommendation and instead requested the county commissioners to increase the relief appropriation by $50,000.

Relief Administrator Wellborn Ellis then said the commissioners had it within their power to increase the rate without recommendation of two grand juries. County Commissioner Charlie Brown declared the commission would have to reduce expenses 25 per cent this year, that he would help the board of welfare secure every additional dollar he could, but that he did not believe it would be possible to raise more without increasing taxes.

Albert Gossett, chairman of the welfare board, said responsibility for finding the $50,000 rested with the commissioners, and he believed they could do so. There was a suggestion administrative expenses of the welfare department might be cut and both Gossett and W. O. Duval said they would approve such a move if it could be made.

Uniform Truck Load. Regulations Are Asked

MIAMI, Fla., March 31.—(AP)—The Miami Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators voted today to ask legislatures of 11 southern states to adopt uniform regulations governing maximum truck loads.

The resolution was adopted after speakers declared that differences in maximum load permitted in various states was hindering the war effort.

The group elected M. C. Connors, motor vehicles director of Oklahoma, president; Henry J. Driggers, Florida motor vehicles commission, vice president, and J. C. Webb, of South Carolina, secretary-treasurer.

Mayor Lyle Fires Secretary For 'Interest' in Campaign

First casualty of the special mayoralty race is William B. "Bill" Edens, executive secretary to former Mayor Le-Craw, who yesterday was fired by Mayor Lyle for "taking an interest in the campaign of one of the aspirants."

It wasn't in behalf of Lyle, himself a candidate. Lyle wrote Edens he was determined to keep politics out of the mayor's office as long as possible and "especially during the coming political brawl."

Edens saw his dismissal, effective yesterday, as an attempt "to throttle" him and "to take away my rights as a free American to choose the candidate whom I will support for public office."

Edens will be succeeded by James A. Miller, who managed one of the late Mayor Key's campaigns. Edens was charged with being "interested" in the campaign of Alderman G. Dan Bridges.

Lyle Requests J. Eugene Cook Midnight Film Seeks Post of Showings Ban State Attorney

Solicitor of Dublin Circuit Announces His Candidacy.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. DUBLIN, Ga., March 31.—Solicitor General J. Eugene Cook, of the Dublin judicial circuit, Tuesday announced his candidacy for attorney general of Georgia in the forthcoming Democratic primary.

In his announcement for the post now held by Ellis Arnall, who is a candidate for governor, Mr. Cook outlined a two-point platform.

Citing it is a violation of the city and state law to operate a theater on Sunday, Lyle said that a "thorough study of the matter proves there is no justification in asking the police be ordered to stop immediately."

Hornsby had not received the communication last night, and said he preferred to make no comment on the mayor's request until the letter was received, and he had read the ordinance.

For months both theaters have begun previews of coming attractions about 11:30 o'clock Saturday nights and the shows continue until about 1 o'clock Sunday morning.

East Pointers To Rally, Get Raid 'Lessons'

Defense Against Attack From Air Will Be Meeting Topic.

Intensive instruction on procedure in the event of an air raid will be given East Point citizens at a defense rally at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the auditorium of Russell High school.

W. J. Howard, chairman for the rally, announced yesterday that several experienced speakers would set forth the possibilities of an air raid in dramatic fashion. "What Takes Place During an Air Raid and What to Expect," is the subject of a talk to be made by Brigadier General Charles H. Cox, retired.

Captain R. A. Gould, of the department of chemical warfare, will address the meeting on the effects of poison gases and methods of combating them; Lieutenant Paul E. Dows, of the Fulton county police, will outline the duties of all people during an air raid, and Paul West, principal of Russell High school, will emphasize the necessity of co-operation with air raid wardens.

The high school band, under leadership of Hoy Griffin, will participate in the ceremonies, which will be concluded by motion pictures of firebomb fighting and first aid shown by W. S. Bell, director of visual education in the Atlanta schools.

Gallup Poll Reveals: British Dislike War's Handling

By GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., March 31.—Evidence that the British public is becoming restless and increasingly dissatisfied with England's war effort is revealed in a series of surveys just completed by the British Institute of Public Opinion.

The number of persons dissatisfied with the government's conduct of the war has increased sharply during the winter. At present one-half of the persons polled by the British Institute find fault with the war effort. In addition, more than two-thirds believe the time has come to take the offensive, rather than continuing to stand on the defensive the rest of the year.

The British surveys, conducted as Russia's ambassador to England, Ivan Maisky, and her envoy to the United States, Maxim Litvinoff, have begun calling for the establishment of a second war front in Europe, probed British attitudes in two ways. The first question asked was this: "Are you satisfied or dissatisfied with the government's conduct of the war?"

The results, and a comparison with the vote on the same question in previous months, is shown below. Note that, among those with opinions, the number which was once satisfied with the war effort has dwindled to such an extent that today there is actually a majority dissatisfied:

	June 1941	Nov. 1941	Today
Satisfied	58%	44%	35%
Dissatisfied	30	38	50
Undecided	12	18	15

A second question in the British Institute survey reveals that only one person in every 10, on the average, is in favor of continuing defensive operations for the rest of the year.

The overwhelming majority believe the time has come to take more offensive.

Tennessean Tells Of 'Buckling' Up Jap Cruiser From Clouds

By CLARK LEE.

BRISBANE, Australia, (Wednesday), April 1.—(AP)—An American flying ace whose uncanny marksmanship on Japanese warships has brought him the distinguished flying cross attributes everything to the accurate sights on his plane and to the practice he got in Louisiana maneuvers last year.

Georgian Gets Flying Cross as Bombing Hero

Captain Parsel, of Maccon, Flew 4,000 Miles in 32 Hours.

UNITED STATES ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, March 31.—(AP)—Details of a 32-hour mission during which a Georgia officer of the American Army Bomber Command operating from bases in the Philippines flew more than 4,000 miles were revealed today when Captain Elmer Parsel, of Maccon, was recommended for the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Captain Donald Keiser, of San Francisco, Parsel and Lieutenant Earl Tash, of Walla Walla, Wash., spent 25 hours in the air on their heroic bombing mission.

They flew more than 4,000 miles and bombed the Japanese in the vicinity of Davao, on Mindanao island. They landed near by, rescued their plane and flew 700 miles on another bombing expedition. They landed at still another field, fueled their plane, and returned to their home base.

Flying Fortresses. Another flight of flying fortresses was attacked by 18 Japanese planes. It shot down four and hit three others, then returned home over 400 miles of sea with six of the crew wounded. Captain Hewitt Wheelers, of Fresno, Cal., one of the two men who were not wounded, said Japanese tracer bullets were plunging through the plane so thick and fast that he did not dare lift his hands from behind the armor plate for an instant. He was recommended for the Distinguished Service Cross.

The third of this group, Lieutenant Elliott Vandevanter, of Washington, D. C., was recommended for the Distinguished Flying Cross. Due to bad weather, he could not immediately find an opening for his bombs, so he made run after run under enemy fire until a hole in the clouds permitted an effective attack.

Shields Crippled Plane. Raiding shipping in the Davao Gulf area, Lieutenant George Schaezel had one engine put out of commission by Japanese fighters. Captain Alvin Mueller, of New Braunfels, Texas, immediately put his plane between Schaezel and the enemy and fought them off at 20,000 feet while the crippled plane started the 1,200-mile flight home over the open sea. Both landed safely, through Mueller's plane was badly chewed by bullets and his gunner, Staff Sergeant James Cannon, was killed.

Another attack on the Davao area was made from a Netherlands Indies base 1,300 miles distant by Major Cecil Combs, of Arlington, Texas; Keiser and Parsel, and Captains James Connally, of Waco, Texas; Edward Bohner, of Plattville, Wis., and Frank Kurtz, of Omaha, Neb. They sank a destroyer and three other vessels and scored four hits on a battleship. A few days later the same group, along with Captain Patrick McIntyre, of Chicago, repeated the raid, sinking a cruiser and several smaller boats.

Japs Maintain Hard Pressure In Philippines

No Indication, However, of Defenders Being 'Softened Up.'

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP) The relentless hammering of Japanese bombers at the Manila harbor forts and American-Filipino lines of Bataan peninsula is continuing day and night with little apparent success, the War Department reported today.

There were a number of casualties yesterday when the enemy bombed a base hospital in Bataan, a war correspondent said, but damage to fortifications was slight. There have been no indications that the grim defenders under Lieutenant General Jonathan M. Wainwright were being "softened up" as the Japanese apparently hoped.

In describing the attack on the hospital, Wainwright reported that it occurred at noon, that the hospital was plainly marked, and that in the preceding six days of heavy bombardment, enemy bombing planes had "carefully avoided" it.

Ground activity in Bataan was confined to sharp clashes between patrols as Japanese bombers kept up the around-the-clock assault on the front lines and rear areas. Intermittent air raids on the forts were accompanied by artillery fire from enemy batteries on the Cavite shore of Manila bay.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE—En route east between planes, Carole Landis (left), motion picture actress, was confronted yesterday in Chicago with a report she would be married to Gene Markey, screen writer and producer. Coyle she said, "I'm going to Washington for a visit, that's all. Mr. Markey is there and of course I will see him; but there are no immediate plans to announce." In Los Angeles, Lili Damita (right) was granted a divorce from Errol Flynn, a washbuckling movie actor, on grounds of cruelty, ending a stormy marriage. She testified Flynn said he wanted to be free, that he didn't want a child or a wife and that he would rather be alone.

COSTS ROCKET IN CROATIA.

BERN, Switzerland, March 31.—(AP)—The high cost of living within Croatia, Europe's youngest nation, is evidently the highest on the continent. The Zagreb correspondent of the Zurich Die Tat said prices of food and other necessities had increased 150 to 200 per cent and luxuries from 300 to 1,000 per cent in Croatia, which was formed from part of Yugoslavia.

Summers dived out of clouds at 14,000 feet and let go his bombs on a cruiser at 7,000, but did not stay around to observe results.

His companions said he sank that cruiser, too, and patrol planes went out next day and confirmed it.

Three days later the same squadron spotted 11 warships and

Schroetter's Body Is Sent to Miami

The body of Carl Herman Schroetter, convicted Nazi spy who hanged himself Sunday at the Atlanta federal penitentiary, yesterday was sent to Miami, Fla., by Paul T. Donehoo Funeral Home at the direction of prison authorities.

Schroetter was formerly captain of a pleasure boat in Miami. His widow, listed as Mrs. Eleanor F. Schroetter, lives there now.

A member of a Nazi spy ring convicted in New York about 10 days ago, Schroetter took his life by slashing his wrists with the diaphragm of a radio headset and by fashioning a noose from a bed sheet, the Justice Department in Washington announced.

U. S. Bombers Blast 62 Ships And 50 Planes

Georgia Captain Awarded Flying Cross After 4,000-Mile Trip.

UNITED STATES ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, March 31.—(AP)—Planes of the American Army Bomber Command, operating from bases in the Philippines and the Netherlands Indies, sank or seriously damaged 46 Japanese transports and 16 warships and destroyed more than 50 Japanese planes up to March 1, it was announced today.

The Bomber Command's chief, Colonel Eugene L. Eubank, of Port Arthur, Texas, and Albuquerque, N. M., gave the accounting today in telling for the first time of the breath-taking exploits of the men who man the flying fortresses.

Many Honors Awarded. Indicative of the extent of these were the recommendations for awards up to the fall of Java: Twelve Distinguished Service Crosses, 25 Distinguished Flying Crosses, 61 Silver Stars and 23 Orders of the Purple Heart, with the honors spread through all ranks.

American losses in personnel and equipment were amazingly low, Colonel Eubank said. He did not give figures, but said, "These planes can carry an awful lot of lead and still come back to their bases."

Only two planes were lost through pilot errors, such as bad take-offs or landings—a record which airmen hailed as remarkable in view of the makeshift fields from which the gigantic bombers so often operated.

Starting with the beginning of the war, Colonel Eubank said the American bomber command in the Philippines was not surprised—it had been on the alert for a long time and carried out tactical missions on the day the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor.

First Gallantry.

The first Japanese attack on the Philippines developed the first outstanding tale of individual gallantry.

Captains Ray Cox, of Riverside, Cal., and Fred Crimmins, of Fort Worth, Texas, went into the burning hangars of Clark Field, calmly started the engines of many planes and taxied them to safety.

Both were recommended for the Distinguished Service Cross.

On the third morning after the outbreak of war, the bombers destroyed at least seven Japanese ships, including two warships. Captain Colin P. Kelly Jr., credited with having hit the battleship

Haruna, was shot down as he returned to his base.

In a raid on a Japanese landing party at near Legaspi bay on Luzon, three bombers distinguished themselves. Captain Jack Adams, of Anadarko, Okla., had to land his damaged bomber on a small island. He and his crew survived a ground strafing and then started back to their base. They arrived three weeks later after having traveled by boat, ox cart, automobile, plane and train.

Former Atlantan To Appear On Major Bowes Radio Hour

WHEN ATLANTANS tune in on the Major Bowes program tomorrow evening over WGST, they will have a very special treat in store for taking part on the program will be none other than that gifted and popular former Atlantan, Mrs. Kenneth Keyes. Mrs. Keyes, you know, was before her marriage Lucile Thomas, daughter of Mrs. Claude C. Smith and the late Irving Thomas. She now lives in Miami, but will journey to New York this week to be on hand Thursday evening for the nationally known broadcast. It goes without saying that she will have a large and appreciative audience, both here and in Miami, where her friends are legion.

Lucile's appearance on the program was arranged when she was "discovered" by a CBS talent scout in Miami. She is a pupil of Professor Di Felita, former star of the Metropolitan Opera Company and now head of the music department of the University of Miami. It was while the former Atlantan was taking a lesson that her singing was heard by the talent scout, and she was immediately offered a chance to appear on the Bowes program.

Possessing a beautiful soprano voice, Lucile is in demand for many social and cultural affairs in Miami. When she returns from New York she will begin rehearsals for the Miami symphony concert to take place next month and in which she has been invited to appear as guest soloist. Last year when the concert was presented, the guest singer was none other than the famous Lily Pons.

A BIRTHDAY cake baked in the shape of a drum and iced in red, white and blue, adorned the table at the Piedmont Driving Club yesterday when Troy Bivings III celebrated his sixth birthday anniversary. Six red candles topped the cake, and red, white and blue flowers in crystal containers decorated each end of the table.

Red, white and blue balloons were given as favors to the children and Dr. Troy Bivings Jr., father of the little boy, made colored movies of the party. Moving picture cartoons in technicolor were shown for the amusement of the children. National flags decorated the white pillars in the ballroom.

Dr. and Mrs. Bivings were assisted in entertaining by Dr. and Mrs. Troy Bivings, grandparents of the little honor guest; his aunts, Mrs. George Woodruff, of Daytona Beach, Fla.; Mrs. Clyde King and Mrs. Gus Loyless.

Miss Huey Weds Rodney Harris At Little Chapel

At an impressive ceremony taking place at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the little chapel of Glenn Memorial church, Miss Carolyn Elizabeth Huey became the bride of James Rodney Harris.

Rev. Pierce Harris, cousin of the groom, performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families and close friends of the young couple. Richard Felder, organist, presented music.

Graceful arrangements of white gladioli and fern formed a background for the altar, which was flanked on either side by branched candelabra holding lighted tapers.

Richard F. Harris Jr. was his brother's best man.

The ushers were Audrey Chandler Harris, brother of the groom; Seaborn Fullilove, John Thomas, all of Athens, and P. Rufus Brown, of Atlanta.

Miss Elizabeth Ray, of Calhoun, was maid of honor and only attendant for the bride. She was given in marriage by her father, John Wesley Huey, by whom she was given in marriage. She wore a heavenly blue costume with a picture hat and navy accessories. Her shoulder spray was of orchids.

Facts No Married Woman Should Be Denied

It is every wife's right to know certain facts. Her greatest happiness, her physical and mental well-being, may be at stake. Yet thousands unknowingly use over-strong solutions of acids for the douche which can burn, scar and sensitize delicate tissue.

Today such doubts and unhappiness, such risks are needless. Science has given womankind Zonite. So powerful, it kills instantly all germs and bacteria with which it comes in contact. Deodorizes—by actually destroying odors. Protects personal cleanliness. Yet Zonite is non-caustic, non-poisonous, safe for delicate tissues. Over 20,000,000 bottles bought. Get Zonite at your druggist today.

A Sixty-Eight-Year-Old Woman Sets a Stiff Pace in Exercise

By Ida Jean Kain.

"Can you go into a deep knee bend without creaking? Or sit on the floor between your legs with your knees bent and heels back at sides of the hips? If not, don't try to fool anybody about your age. You're not in the class with a Washington, D. C., lady of 68 who can pass those tests with the greatest of ease and who looks so young she enjoys telling her age!"

I'd like to introduce you to Victory Barker Scheetz. You would find it hard to believe she is as old as she declares she is. She has an excellent figure, plenty of bounce and vivacity, and is very attractive. This first letter from her gives you an idea of what she is like:

"Maybe you would like to know this old girl has been a persistent follower of your health-giving, body-building exercises for about three years, and with splendid results. Within the past year I have added a horizontal bar and a six-pound medicine ball to my bedroom gym. I also have a roll and tumble mat."

This note from Mrs. Scheetz so captured my imagination that I wrote and requested more particulars of her program. Here is her reply:

"I use the horizontal bar for stretching, twisting, swinging and alternating front and back kick. The two things I do not do are chin myself and skin the cat. 'I cannot recommend the bar to anyone past 40 unless the abdominal muscles are good and strong. If a woman has to be held together by a girdle it is better to stretch on a pallet.'"

She not only passed the flexibility tests mentioned today but first given some weeks ago in an article, but is proud to say that

Studies Come Before Love For the Thirteen-Year-Old

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie:

If there ever was a girl in trouble, I am. I am 13, and I am desperately in love with a man 25. Now the only hitch is that he is married and has a precious little girl. I was never one to believe in breaking up homes, but I love him terribly. Please do not tell me to forget him, for that I can never do.

He says he will ask his wife for a divorce for a woman who will be a good wife to him. I know I would make him a good wife. I know all about housekeeping, and besides that I have had six months of home economics. The wife he has now does not stay at home long enough to cook him a good meal. Please tell me if I should tell him to get a divorce or go through life a broken-hearted girl. I know that I can never love another man. DESPERATE.

It is unthinkable that a girl of your few years should be so ridiculously sentimental over a man of 25, married and the father of a child. Of course I will advise you to forget him and go back to your school books. This man has no more idea of leaving his wife and marrying you than he has in flying to the moon. You are young and inexperienced, and he is using you as a very successful target to practice his charms.

In the first place I think you are too young to be having dates unless it is with a group of the boys and girls at school. You are entirely too young to be thinking of love and marriage in so serious a manner. In a few years your idea of love and the object of your love and affections will be entirely different. Love, or rather the type of love changes with maturity, and if you at 13 are believing men when they tell you they will leave their wives to marry you, you have unhappy years ahead.

At 13, you could not assume the upkeep of the home or take on the duties of being a wife, and you have not the experience necessary to rear a child. If his wife runs around and is never home as you say in the letter, I do not suppose it has occurred to you that she has good reason to pay no attention to her husband since he is running around with a dreamy 13-year-old. I cannot understand why your parents have allowed you to run around with this man. Get back to your studies.

People in the theater long ago learned that powder could be used to create an effect of youth or age, but women, generally, are just beginning to realize that the wrong powder is worse than no powder at all. A powder to create an illusion of youthful loveliness is described in the accompanying article. Helen Hayes, "America's Best-Loved Actress," who will soon appear here in "Candle in the Wind," knows all the tricks of using powder to create the effect of youth or age.

Twin Shades of Powder Give Skin a Natural Glow

By Winifred Ware.

This is the time when you are eagerly awaiting spring. Easter does that to one, and in anticipation of the balmy days ahead, every woman begins to make plans to have her wardrobe as fresh as the season itself.

That freshness and soft pastel beauty, she wants to duplicate in her complexion, too, if she can. And with the help of the American cosmetics, she can do just that.

Today I want to tell you about a new idea in face powder, an idea so sound that it is bound to produce an illusion of skin loveliness, even if there are little imperfections under the makeup. One enterprising manufacturer has overcome that problem now with a twin package of powder which completely eliminates any tendency toward a muddy or sallow look.

Two harmonizing colors of powder are packaged together. One is a very fine powder, which should be oh-so-slightly lighter than your normal skin tone. This is applied first. Its purpose is to give a fresh, glowing quality to the makeup; to create the illusion of a fresh, glowing skin. Then a slightly heavier and darker shade of powder is applied over this first coat to give a mat-like, translucent appearance to the skin.

Neither powder is noticeable on the skin, so perfectly blended are they, and so true to natural skin tones. The effect is one of natural loveliness.

And I know you will be glad to know that this manufacturer has eliminated any ingredients such as orris root, which are recognized by physicians as allergic.

The light fragrance, too, of these fine, smooth powders will delight you.

In fact, I can't think of anything about this twin package and its contents that you won't like. It is priced at $1.50, and you get a generous dollar and a half's worth.

For the name of this powder and information as to where it may be purchased, call Winifred Ware at Walnut 6565. If you live out of town, write me, care The Constitution.

Your Horoscope For Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS.

Noted Atlanta Chronolist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—Very favorable influences predominate before 3:47 p. m. for general business activities, wholesale and retail, for dealings with professional people, for matters related to education, for social and artistic affairs. There are times, however, when influences, while good, also lead to extravagances, and this period is one of them.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—The entire day may be considered favorable, with the better part of the day previous to 3:41 p. m. An excellent time for making appointments, meetings, conferences, financial affairs and public matters.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—Before 1:03 p. m. holds conservative influences, favoring matters of a substantial nature, acting at things in a positive way and finishing work that has been dragging. After 1:03 p. m. radical changes or departure from ordinary proceedings should be guarded against.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—After 11:35 a. m. this should be most favorable day, when you can deal with others with diplomacy. After 11:35 a. m. is most favorable for general business, legal consultations, and for contacting those who are able to give good counsel.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—Previous to 1:19 noon favors appointments, meetings, financial affairs, public matters. After 1:19 p. m. favors attending to old duties or matters that require patience and perseverance.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—The entire day is very auspicious for promoting your personal interests. Make important contacts, seek favors and expand your sphere of life.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—The best aspects of the day operate previous to 1:30 p. m. This period favors general business activity, literary and educational matters. The remainder of the day favors following established methods and sticking to routine.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—The hours previous to 8:48 a. m. favors attention to customers correspondence, routine matters and appointments. Between 8:48 a. m. and 7:20 p. m. favors making contacts with others and for successful diplomatic relations.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—Previous to 1:20 noon favors affairs in general. Keenness and alertness will be noticed in your dealings and a general attitude of harmony surrounds your transaction. After 1:20 noon be careful of sharp speech, undue aggressiveness or overexuberance.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—The entire day and until 10:12 p. m. favors general dealings that call for graciousness of manner and interests that are of a practical nature. The period favors research, studying, investigations, for dealings with managers, officials and general business.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—Between 10:31 a. m. and 7 p. m. favors general business and professional activities, matters pertaining to law, religion and philosophy. After 7 p. m. use special care in driving.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—The entire day and until 10:26 p. m. favors accomplishments of a stable nature. Quick action, creative work, writing, commercial transactions should be highly stimulated to your profit.

War Restrictions on Chemicals Threaten the Hollywood Blonde

By Harold Heffernan.

HOLLYWOOD, March 31.—Here's some hair news—good or bad—all depending on whether you like your screen beauties in the light or dark.

Makeup experts in the film capital shake their heads dubiously and declare that the prevailing Hollywood percentage of two blondes to every brunette is due for a reverse revision.

Actually, they maintain, the far-famed "Hollywood blonde" will shortly make her appearance strictly on a ration basis.

It's the war, of course. Priorities, restrictions and such being what they are, you can confidently look forward to a plethora of brunettes, rather than flaxen, Venuses in your film fare, starting just about any time now.

Among materials either scarce or no longer available at all and cause of the war are peroxide and certain other chemicals that go into bleaches, rinses and whatever else it is the Hollywood lovelies must use to keep their hair nice and bright.

Already, those headline glamor personalities who have been depending on magic fluids for so much of their box charm are astir these days, consulting studio and private makeup specialists in a desperate effort to circumvent the writing on the wall.

Even the honest-to-goodness blondes—and there are a couple in the picture business—won't escape. The real ones need a bit of touching up now and then, and they're going to be hard put to keep those coiffures shining like platinum.

A casual survey of Hollywood's leading feminine talent reveals that the blondes—authentic or otherwise—still dominate the scene. Bette Davis, Madeleine Carroll, Marlene Dietrich, Greta Garbo, Joan Fontaine, Betty Grable, Carole Landis, Alice Faye, Virginia Bruce, Ida Lupino—the list goes on and down through the extra ranks, where the tendency to lighter tints is even more noticeable.

Among the top-flight brunettes are such established favorites as Hedy Lamarr, Olivia De Havilland, Brenda Marshall, Joan Crawford, Irene Dunne, Paulette Goddard, Dorothy Lamour, Gene Tierney and Linda Darnell. All of these have stood pretty pat on dark hair, except for an occasional bit of shading, and therefore find themselves free of any transformation worries.

The red-heads can claim quite a few standouts, and like the blondes, may find the going a bit difficult in the future. Those henna rinses and brushups are likely to be curtailed as available ingredients for turning the trick are reverted to more warlike uses. In the current "red" category are Barbara Stanwick, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Nancy Coleman, Ann Sheridan, Joan Leslie, Mary Martin and Ginger Rogers.

Curiously enough, individual studios seem to run to certain colors of hair. This is traceable to the fact that men in charge of hairdress on the various lots each have a liking for certain shades. And, with very little coaxing, a star will most always follow the expert's advice in adopting color patterns.

But today's list indicates that the current crop of stars is predominantly blond. Out of some 40 "name" actresses, more than half are blondes. There are 10 brunettes and seven red-heads.

Beauty experts admit to a real shortage in blonding materials and are convinced that brunettes throughout the nation, as well as in Hollywood, will stage a determined comeback. It's just a case of where the girls won't be dying for their country.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

Over two million women will choose Armour's Tender-Tested Star Ham for Easter! What better proof that it's America's most delicious ham!

How to Bake and Glaze—Wrap your Tender-Tested Star Ham in its inside glassine wrapper. Place, fat side up, in an uncovered baking pan. Bake in 325° F. oven, 18 minutes to the pound. 45 minutes before done, remove paper and rind, score the fat in squares. Then glaze with a mixture of 2 cups brown sugar and ½ cup corn syrup. Return to the oven until baking is finished and the ham is golden brown.

Call in The Game

BY JACK TROY

Temperamental Ted MACON, Ga., March 31. Ted Williams, who was benched in Atlanta a couple of seasons ago, returns to the Gate City tomorrow as the American League's first .400 hitter since Harry Heilmann some two decades past.

Williams, one of the game's great hitters, was benched by Manager Joe Cronin because of a temperamental outburst stemming from a long fly caught by the wind.

It was during the game between the Red Sox and the Crackers and a fly hit to right field kept sailing. Williams ran and ran in pursuit and finally dropped the ball. It irked him so much that he picked it up and threw it out of the park. Manager Cronin promptly took him out of the lineup and threatened him with suspension.

Manager Paul Richards recalled today that during batting practice Williams hit a ball onto the railroad tracks that was foul by inches. The wind helped him.

Batting is Williams' life; he has been quoted to the effect that eating can wait when a turn at bat is involved. Dependency of a mother caused Williams to be deferred after it had been announced he would be lost to the Red Sox, and there was some concern as to the public reaction. However, there was little criticism.

A fair-minded public realized that if it had happened to Joe Doakes, clerk, nothing at all would have been said.

The Old Foxx Atlanta fans will see another of the game's great hitters in Jimmy Foxx. This most valuable member of the Red Sox is next to Babe Ruth in home-run totals.

He leads active players by a wide margin and when his career is over he'll rank second to Ruth for all time, and there is little chance of future players overtaking them.

Manager Cronin has been involved in a bit of unsual detailing. Joe Engel originally signed him at a price reported to be $7,500 and was afraid for a week to take him into Washington.

Cronin married Clark Griffith's daughter and Griffith, one of the shrewd David Harums of the game, sold him to the Red Sox for something like $300,000.

In other words, he cleared around $292,500 on the investment, and married off a daughter as well.

And Joe Engel has never forgotten how he made Cronin travel with him for a week until he could get his nerve up to face the old man and explain why he went as high as $7,500.

Also with the Red Sox are Jim Tabor, former Alabama and Little Rock player, and Lamar (Skeeter) Newsome, of Columbus, Ga.

The Red Sox originally gave Tabor a nice sum to sign, and sudden affluence made the former Tide star feel rather expensive. He promptly went to an auto agency, saw a high-priced model he liked, and told the salesman: "Wrap up a couple of those."

It's said for truth that before the season opened he had to apply for an advance on his salary.

Boys will be boys.

Play's the Thing Manager Slug, as the boys call Richards, believes that he holds and maybe justly that a fan had rather see a fine play than a home run.

I'd never thought much about it, but there is a lot of satisfaction in seeing a fine infield work. A fast double play is a thing of beauty and a joy forever to a dyed-in-the-sun follower of the great national pastime.

Come to think of it, no one ever wrote a poem about the Ruthian homers, but there is an immortal bit about the great double-play combination of Tinker to Evers to Chance.

One of the things Richards has had to impress on Charlie Letchas, one of the great pivot men on a double play in all baseball, is to make one out sure. Charlie has been inclined to be double play conscious.

Many a twin killing is in prospect on the Cracker nine this summer, with Buster Blakeney teaming with Letchas. The fans will have the pleasure of seeing a first-class infield in action.

The club is back home tomorrow after a month of training, and with the exception of a couple of spots, is set for opening day. As soon as an outfielder is obtained, most of the worries will be over.

In the meanwhile, Tommy O'Brien, Pete Thomassie and Charley Woodall form a fine rookie defensive combination, but there is need for more power.

Bulldogs Blast 21 Hits To Beat Michigan State

By F. M. WILLIAMS. ATHENS, Ga., March 31.—Georgia spotted Michigan State a five-run lead in the first two innings, then turned on the power to blast out 21 hits and score a 20-to-9 victory. It was the second straight decision over the Spartans for the Bulldogs.

It took exactly three hours to play the contest. But it took only three blows to really decide the outcome.

Sophomore Red Boyd, a catcher, supplied two of those, home runs with two on base each time, and big Van Davis, first baseman, came through with the other, a four-bagger with the bases loaded.

Georgia will play Auburn here Friday and Saturday, the games starting at 4 o'clock.

Michigan State got four runs in the first inning to blast Lefty Zorn out of the box and added another in the second when Irving Stewart, relief hurler, threw home instead of first base after he had fielded a ground ball hit by Fornari that would have retired the side. Boyd was five feet from the plate and didn't have a chance to get Andreoli, who scored from third on the mix-up.

Nick Picciotto hit a home run in the first frame to start the scoring spree.

Crackers Defeat Peaches and Camp Wheeler

Red Sox Play Atlanta Club At Poncey Park

Blakeney, New Shortstop, Reports; May Play Today.

By JACK TROY.

LUTHER WILLIAMS FIELD, MACON, Ga., March 31.—Atlanta's scrapping Crackers won their second double-header of the spring this afternoon, overcoming Macon's Peaches, 9 to 2, and outlaying Camp Wheeler, 8 to 7. The Wheeler game was called at the end of the eighth to allow Atlanta to catch a train home. The first game was seven innings by agreement. The Boston Red Sox are scheduled to play the Crackers tomorrow afternoon at Poncey de Leon park, starting at 3 o'clock.

The Crackers clubbed out an early lead in the Macon game, leading by 7 to 2 at the end of the third. Ed Nowak and Louis Bush allowed only six hits between them while the Crackers collected 10 off Levy and Archer.

Walter Heckel, kid shortstop, led the hitting with three for four in the Wheeler game. Cecil Travis, Riverdale boy and former Washington star, and Babe Ellis, ex-Cracker, did some big league slugging that almost won for the soldiers. Travis collected three hits, while Ellis hit a triple and home run. The latter blow accounted for three runs.

The Crackers got 10 hits in the Wheeler game. O'Brien's three topped the attack. A four-run rally in the eighth won the game.

Buster Blakeney, the Crackers' new shortstop from Montreal, arrived in Atlanta yesterday and will be ready for service against the Red Sox.

President Earl Mann said that Blakeney, who formerly played with Memphis, reported in good playing condition and perhaps would be used in the home debut of the Crackers.

Blakeney was obtained from Brooklyn and is rated one of the best defensive shortstops in the minor leagues.

Catcher Larry (Doc) Smith, returned to Atlanta by the New York Giants, also joined the team last night and will be in uniform today. Pitcher Emile Lochbaum is expected to report to the club momentarily.

FIRST GAME.

The Crackers scored three runs in the first inning of the game against the Peaches. Browne, Richards, Woodall and Ligon hit successive singles and Glock, who forced Letchas, scored along with Browne and Richards after two were out.

In the Peach half of the first, Glock dropped Smith's pop and Smith, making two bases, scored on Machloff's single.

Thomassie walked, stole second and scored on Glock's single as the Crackers increased their lead to 4-1 in the second inning.

Singles by Gold and George and Smith's fielder's choice gave the Peaches a second run in their half of the second.

Errors and hits gave the Crackers three runs in the third. Richards and Ligon were safe on misplays and Heckel singled, leading to right, scoring Richards and Ligon, and when the ball got away from Machloff, Heckel also scored.

The last two Cracker runs were the product of error. Thomassie got to first on an error, Letchas and Miller walked. Woodall flied to center and Hartness dropped the ball. Thomassie and Letchas crossed the plate.

SECOND GAME.

Camp Wheeler opened the scoring in the first inning. Martin walked and Corbett and Travis followed with singles as Martin scored.

The Crackers took advantage of a flurry of errors to score three runs in the third. Letchas' ground-out eluded Travis, Glock singled and Browne was safe when Ellis dropped his fly. Letchas scored.

Cox bunted and when Bosser threw wide at first both Glock and Browne flouted.

Ellis clouted a triple and scored on Lombard's single as Camp Wheeler drew within a run of tying the count in the fourth inning.

O'Brien led off the fifth with a walk and scored from first on Woodall's double.

Travis and Ellis put the deadwood on the Crackers in the seventh. The soldiers scored four runs to take the lead by 6 to 4. After two were out Corbett doubled. Travis scored him with a single, his third hit of the game. Bruckner singled and Ellis, former Cracker, then hit a home run inside the park.

A four-run rally put the Crackers back on top in the eighth. Letchas walked and was forced by Glock. Browne and Cox walked.

O'Brien's single scored Glock and Browne, and Dozier's single scored Cox. There was an error on Livingston's fielder's choice and O'Brien went home. That made the score 8 to 6.

Lombard and Dorton singled and Lombard scored on Sabo's outfield fly as the Camp Wheeler rally fell one short. In the eighth the game was called.

FOXX HERE TODAY—Jimmy Foxx, one of the most powerful baseball sluggers of all time, will be here today as the Boston Red Sox tangle with the Crackers in the first exhibition game of the season at Ponce de Leon.

Captain and first baseman of the Boston club, Foxx is far ahead of all others in the game today in the matter of total home runs, and his record is second only to Babe Ruth's. Though past his prime, Foxx is still a dangerous man at the plate.

Bright Leads AWGA Golfers

Mrs. Morton Bright, with a net 74, captured top honors in the first division as the Atlanta Women's Golf Association completed its second round of the opening spring tournament yesterday at the Capital City golf course.

Mrs. Sidney Smith, with a 76, was second. Mrs. Albert Donnadieu was first in the second division with a net 82. Mrs. Marvin Bass scored an 85. Mrs. M. B. Ward's net 76 took top place in the third division. Mrs. George Lowman had an 88 for second place.

The final round of the tournament will be played today. Prizes will be awarded for the best rider score for the three rounds, in addition to the day's prizes.

Kennel Show List To Close Friday Noon

A. K. C. Events To Be Held at Auditorium April 9-10.

By RUTH STANTON COGILL.

The final closing date for entries in the Atlanta Kennel Club Dog Show to be held at the city auditorium April 9-10 is noon Friday. After that time no entries will be accepted, so if Fido hasn't his name in the pot, better hurry. Either mail or take your entry to Mrs. Emma Loest, superintendent, at H. G. Hastings Company, 180 Mitchell street.

Entry fees are $2 for Puppy and Novice classes, $3 for American-bred, Limit and Open Classes. Local and Field Trial classes are free, but dogs must be entered in one of the regular A. K. C. classes.

Any dog over six months of age, any breed, may be entered in the show. If your dog is not registered, add 25 cents to the entry fee for license fee.

Dogs need not be brought to the show except on the day they are to be judged, and will be permanently excused from the show that evening unless eligible for further judging.

Trout Season Opens in North Georgia Today

Many Anglers Forced To Fish As Violators

Fishermen Unable To Buy Licenses From Appointed Agents.

By JOHN MARTIN.

The trout season in mountain streams, outside the Chattahoochee National Forest, opened at sun-up today, but many Atlanta anglers who follow the true traditions of the rainbow and brook clan found themselves breaking the law or waiting for a 1942 fishing license.

Dyed-in-fies anglers have long observed the custom of throwing at them early, long before the shadows reach the hiding places of trout in deep pools. And those whose tires were strong enough to carry them doubtless were in the streams for the customary break-of-day cast.

Many of them were violators (fishing without a license), but not intentionally. Failure of the Department of Revenue and the State Wildlife Division, which collaborate in the selection of agents, to distribute licenses yesterday provoked this unnecessary state d'affaire.

The 1941-42 licenses expired yesterday, and fishermen who planned to leave for the streams last night sought in vain to purchase new permits. Appointed agents were just as upset.

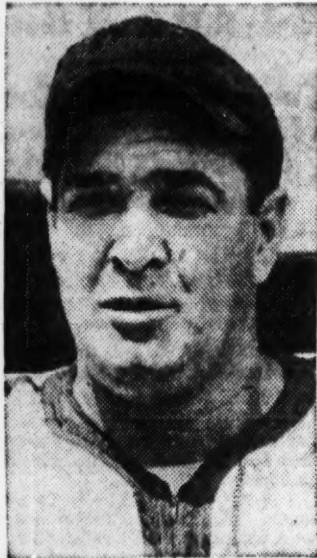

A check of agents named last Sunday by Zach (Taint So) Cravey revealed that only one, an oil station adjacent to Capitol Square, had licenses. King Hardware reported it had been forced to turn down at least 50 customers. Beck & Gregg likewise was still looking for its shipment. One of the sporting goods men said that several fishermen walked out in disgust and intimidated they would fish without licenses—all the year.

Parks-Chambers likewise could give no encouragement. "We don't know when we'll get them," a clerk said. "They just bring them in when they want to and leave them. That's the way it works."

The Buckhead Hardware Co. hoped to get hooks sometime today. "We understand, though, that a filling station over around the capital has them."

The Buckhead man suggested (to a Buckhead resident) that a money order receipt for a license might be sufficient. This method, however, has its loopholes, just as Cravey once pointed out when he was lambasting the previous administration, which had honored such a plan.

Licenses or no licenses, the season is on. The best streams? Your guess is as good as anybody's.

Senators Buy Buck Newsom From Detroit

LAKELAND, Fla., March 31.—(P)—Friend Louis (Buck) Newsom, the loquacious baseball pitcher, will do his talking now from Washington, where the competition from Congress may be stiffer, but no doubt all the more fun for Buck.

The Detroit Tigers, who matched Newsom in stubbornness over salary if not in the art of discussion, sold the swashbuckling, 34-year-old right-hander to the Washington Senators last night and wrote off their last major holdout problem.

General Manager Jack Zeller announced it as a straight cash transaction. The sum was not disclosed, but it was reported to have been considerably more than the $7,500 waiver price. Twice this spring the Tigers had asked waivers on Newsom.

Newsom's departure from the Tigers, for whom he performed sensationally in the 1940 championship season with 21 victories against five defeats, had been considered inevitable. Buck refused to accept a pay cut from his reported $33,000 of 1941 to a reported $13,000.

SIMON NOT UP.

NEW YORK, March 31.—(P)—The New York State Athletic Commission decided today, after hearing a complaint by Jimmy Johnson, manager of Abe Simon, that Simon was not on his feet at the count of "ten" in the sixth round against Joe Louis last Friday night and therefore had been counted out.

Burge's Clout In 9th Inning Beats Yanks

Les Hits for Chipman With Bases Loaded; Beckman Shelled.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 31.—(P)—Billy Herman, Brooklyn infielder who won yesterday's baseball game with his first hit in 22 trips to the plate, crashed out a ninth-inning double today that enabled the Dodgers to tie the New York Yankees and go on from there for a 4-to-3 triumph.

Herman's blow sent Dixie Walker home with the equalizer and Catcher Mickey Owen raced to third. He stayed there while Pee-wee Reese was walked to tie the bases and then Les Burge, recruit first baseman from Atlanta, hit for Bob Chipman and laced a single over Tom Henrich's head to bat across the winning marker.

BECKMAN BLASTED. LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 31.—(P)—The Chicago Cubs landed on top with a 15-to-4 triumph over the Philadelphia Athletics.

Lou Stringer homered for the Cubs with two on base in the opening inning and Bill Nicholson came through with a similar clout with another pair on base in the fifth. Johnny Wallaesa, of the As, also hit for the circuit.

HEATH BANGS 2. HATTIESBURG, Miss., March 31.—(P)—Jeff Heath's two home runs wiped out a lot of good pitching by Dave Keso today and the Cleveland Indians defeated the New York Giants for the fourth time in five meetings, 3 to 2, in 10 innings.

Classes Begin Today In Shooting, Casting

Two free clinics, both allied to the great outdoors, will be held here this afternoon.

Fred Etchen, noted shooting instructor, will conduct the first in a series of lessons in the care and handling of shotguns at the Capitol Gun Club.

A class in casting will be held by Chris Stephens under sponsorship of the Atlanta Fly and Bait Casting Club at Piedmont park lake.

Etchen's pupils will report from 4 to 7 o'clock. The anglers will cast from 3:30 till sundown. Jack Tway, president of the gun club and a director of the Georgia Wildlife Federation, announced that "everybody interested in better shooting or in learning to shoot" is invited to Etchen's school. He requested that shooters bring their own guns, explaining that Etchen will examine them and make tests designed to give shooters better results, as well as safety insurance.

Gunners will be charged 6 cents a shot if they care to practice at the club during these three-hour lessons. Otherwise there will be no charge, Tway said.

Joe Engel Shows His Hurlers 'How'

WINTER GARDEN, Fla., March 31.—(P)—Joe Engel took the field yesterday to give pitchers of his Chattanooga Lookouts some lessons in holding runners on base. Engel, president of the Chattanooga club, is a former Washington hurler.

The workout consisted chiefly of a "chose-up" scrimmage game, with Ellis Clary, second baseman, getting three hits in as many trips.

Tech Netmen Open Season With Clemson

Jacket Yearlings Also Meet Tiger Frosh This Afternoon.

Georgia Tech's tennis team will open the regular season this afternoon in a match with the Clemson Tigers on the Tech courts.

Return of two members from last year's team, Charles (Kinky) Lindsay and Will (Boneyard) Johnson give the 1942 netmen their strongest squad in several seasons. In addition to Lindsay and Johnson, who rank one and two, respectively, the Jackets have Nelson Abel and George Sellers, a pair of able performers up from the freshman squad. Carlton Wellborn, a transfer from North Georgia College and "Buck" LeCraw round out the first six.

Tech's freshmen, too, boast one of the strongest teams in history. Carl Maddox, T. W. Fowler, George Waggenheim, Connie LeCraw and Bill Clarson are some of the outstanding prospects. They will meet the Clemson freshmen this afternoon and Canton High on Saturday.

Regents Consider Grid Ban Proposal Today

The question of whether Georgia Tech and Georgia will continue intercollegiate football as other Southeastern Conference schools are doing or will abandon it for the duration, as L. W. "Chip" Robert wishes, will be decided today at a special meeting of the Board of Regents.

No other business is supposed to come before the meeting. Governor Talmadge is expected to voice his views on the subject for the first time.

The whole thing started when Robert, in Washington, proposed the abolition of intercollegiate football for the duration and said he would propose such a measure at the next meeting of the Board of Regents.

His idea immediately drew a storm of protest from officials of both schools, including President Harmon W. Caldwell, of Georgia, Coach W. A. Alexander, of Tech and Chancellor S. V. Sanford, of the University System.

Chairman Beaver will fly from his duties as director of Riverside Military Academy's winter activities in Hollywood, Fla., for the meeting. He has voiced opposition to the plan.

Every member of the regents except one have signified an intention to be present.

Should the Governor support the plan, a hard fight to keep football at Tech and Georgia is expected as a majority of the regents were hand-picked by him before the recent Pittman-Cocking trial.

The meeting will start at 10:30 this morning.

Bryan, Neely, Howell Speak To B'nai B'rith

War Developments Told by Three Leaders in Business Here.

Three leaders in their respective fields last night spoke on how the war is going, at the monthly meeting of Gate City Lodge, B'nai B'rith, held in the Educational Center at 250 Tenth street, N. E.

Malcolm Bryan, vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank; Frank H. Neely, executive vice president and secretary of Rich's, and Clark Howell, editor and publisher of The Constitution, were guest speakers.

Bryan warned that a 40 per cent decrease in the nation's standard of living must be expected because of the tremendous costs of the war. He exploded the idea future generations can be expected to bear some of the costs of this war.

He said the country must pay for the airplanes, ships, tanks and other material now.

Neely pointed out how the war has forced the government to "dislocate" business to a great extent. A recent visitor to the Bell Aircraft Company in Buffalo, Neely told of the amazing change the plant has undergone in the last several months and described the intricate set-up necessary for producing the Airacobra, regarded as the world's finest fighting plane at certain altitudes.

He said the new Bell bomber plant at Marietta would probably affect every Atlantan in some way.

Howell spoke on newspapers and their new responsibilities brought on by the war. In discussing censorship he said the public, as well as newspapers, should exert great care in preventing dissemination of information that might help the enemy and cause dishonor at home.

He said newspapers must be extremely cautious in criticism of government action but at the same time must be on the alert to insure efficient prosecution of the war.

Eugene Oberdorfer presided at the meeting and the program was arranged by a committee headed by L. C. Long.

U. S. Profits By Efficiency Of Air Firm

$14,000,000 Returned to Government Through Reduced Costs.

KANSAS CITY, March 31.—(P) J. H. Kindelberger, president of North American Aviation, Inc., said today increased efficiency had reduced the cost of military planes to the extent that his company had returned $14,000,000 to the government rather than accept it as profit.

"The effect of our manufacturing efficiency," he said, "has reduced the cost of a plane 33-1-3 per cent under the cost of that same plane in the summer of 1940, when the cost of both labor and materials were lower."

North American has three plants turning out bombers for the government—at Inglewood, Cal., Dallas and Kansas City.

"All the North American plants are ahead of their contract schedule," he said as he inspected the factory here.

Public Invited To Open House At McPherson

Visitors To See Fighters of Uncle Sam and Dine With Them.

If you have been wondering what happened to your son, brother or sweetheart when he was called to Uncle Sam's arms, you'll have your chance to learn next Monday, which is Army Day.

It will be "open house" at Fort McPherson on that day, which President Roosevelt has proclaimed "Total War" day, and you can see for yourself what goes on. Colonel Clifford C. Early, commander, announced yesterday.

Not only can you visit the hospital and the barracks, watch a formal guard mount, one of military's most interesting ceremonies, but you can tackle an Army meal. The menu won't be changed for the visitors, either. You'll get Army bread and like it.

Army To Be on Display. The supper for guests will be served in the mess hall between 4:30 o'clock and 5 o'clock. And the Army isn't kidding when it advises that the more folks for the all-day program, the merrier.

"The Army wants to take full advantage of this opportunity to show you your Army," Colonel Early said. "This is about the only chance to show civilians the post, he added.

Army work won't be stopped while the visitors are making "the rounds of the main post and the reception center, Colonel Early said. Officers and enlisted men will be designated to guide the guests who will have an opportunity of seeing the men actually working, as well as exhibitions of the use of all weapons which are not secret.

Here's the "open house" program, which includes a parade of Fort McPherson personnel and combat units downtown:

9 to 5 o'clock—Reception Center, outdoor exhibitions of "processing a recruit," 11 to 2, formal guard mount with band; 3 to 4, concert by reception center band.

1 to 6 o'clock—Main post, conducted tours of hospitals, model barracks, mess hall, kitchen, post exchange, typical dayroom where soldiers spend their spare time, medical laboratory, induction station, tent camp, various vehicles and other equipment.

Whether you have a few suitcases or many items of furniture to be removed, you can find somebody for the job by turning to Classification 84—"Moving and Storage."

State To Award Contract for 4-Lane Road

Construction To Cover 12.1 Miles on Columbus-Cusseta Highway

State Highway Department yesterday announced a contract would be let April 17 for construction of a four-lane, concrete highway covering 12.1 miles on the Columbus-Cusseta road.

One of the largest single projects ever let by the Highway Department, it will cost an estimated $1,430,000. Since it is classed as an access road to Fort Benning, the federal government will bear the bulk of the cost.

Construction will be in two sections. The first will start in Cusseta and extend 8.4 miles towards Columbus. Estimated cost of this section is $1,085,000 and the federal government will pay for it in full.

Beginning about half a mile inside the south city limits of Columbus, the second section will run 3.7 miles toward Cusseta. The cost of this is estimated at $345,000. The federal government will provide 75 per cent of the money and the state the rest.

Grading for the project, involving relocation of part of the present state route 1, will be 89 feet wide. A center strip will be 30 feet wide, flanked by 2-foot concrete strips on each side.

The unpaved gap in the center of the new highway will be constructed later.

Other projects on which bids will be received the same day bring the total contemplated outlay for the letting to $1,712,000. These projects, by counties, are:

Harris Construction. Harris—Concrete bridge and approaches on Hamilton-Columbus road over Mulberry creek.

Glynn—McIntosh—Asphalt approaches to bridge under construction at Darien on coastal highway across the South Altamaha river.

Wayne—Asphalt surfacing of five miles beginning in Odum and extending toward Screven.

Warren—Asphalt of three miles beginning at Warrenton and extending toward Camack.

Meriwether—Pike—3.8 miles of grading on Greenville-Zebulon road beginning one half mile east of Woodbury and extending to the west city limits of Molena.

News of Welcome Relief Pow-o-lin Brings Spreads Throughout All Georgia

Well-Known Men and Women From Every Walk of Life Tell of Blessed Relief From Harassing Distress. "Pow-o-lin Is the Best Medicine I Ever Saw," Declares Happy Mrs. Kelly.

In heartfelt, grateful praise to Pow-o-lin, well-known Savannah men and women come forward with public statements strongly endorsing this purely herbal medicine, telling of blessed relief from distress that harassed them day and night. For instance, Mrs. W. L. Kelly, residing at 346 Lincoln St., Savannah, publicly states:

"I don't believe anyone could have felt as let down, miserable, aching and sluggish as I did and still keep up and going. Everything I ate hurt me with gassy bloating, pressure that made me feel smothered, and at times blinding headaches attacked me. My nerves were on edge until I felt I could hardly contain myself and sound, restless sleep was out of the question. Morning found me feeling so let down I felt I should stay in bed. Constipation forced me to take strong laxatives that made me feel weak and tremble and made toxic wastes of constipation filled my intestines until I felt so slug-
